It's Turkey Time And This Year's Tariff Is Lower

By ERNEST MURPHY

Thanksgiving turkeys, as Marin and Southern Sonoma residents are finding out this week, are neither as cheap as they were a few years ago nor as costly as they were last year.

This year's seasonal peak in the big bird business is coming at a time when two contrary forces are at work on prices — high feed costs pushing them up and inflation-wearied consumers holding them down.

It was last year that turkey prices reached an alltime high — frozen birds were sold for 59 to 69 cents a pound, with fresh ones even higher.

Enough consumers balked last year that producers and retailers alike are now fearful of setting prices on the birds too high, according to Jack Merritt, vice president of Nicholas Turkey Breeding Farms.

On several ranches scattered around Marin and Sonoma, his company develops birds which are the parents of most of the meat birds sold in the United States.

As the largest single producer of breeding turkeys in the world, the company founded by Petaluman George Nicholas keeps tabs on market trends since they ultimately affect the firm's sales.

Merritt said this year's prices are actually too low — so low, in fact, that neither producers nor sellers can make a profit on turkeys. (Retailers agreed on the lack of profit on frozen birds, although several told the I-J they were making profits on fresh ones.)

He and other businessmen in the field surveyed agreed that the current prices could eventually drive many producers out of business, causing a turkey shortage which would pump prices higher than anything seen so far.

The problem for the producer, Merritt said, is that "people just won't buy turkeys if they think prices are too high."

What are prices like in Marin and Southern Sonoma?

It's like this: In 1964, frozen birds were selling for 33 to 35 cents a pound and fresh ones were around 39 cents a pound.

By 1970, the price had climbed to 37 to 39 cents a pound frozen and 41 to 45 cents for fresh birds.

Then last year, of course, prices soared.

This year, frozen birds range from 46 to 53 cents a pound, and fresh ones are usually from 65 to 79 cents.

Boiled down, the figures show that, over the last decade, the price of frozen turkeys in the area has gone up 35 to 40 per

LAND PURCHASE

Sausalito Bond Votes Are Set

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Two bond measures, one to buy property for a "civic plaza" and a second for purchase of open space lands, will be placed before Sausalito voters in March, the city council decided last night. (Other Sausalito City Council stories, page 8.)

Councilmen agreed unanimously to ask voters to approve purchase of the one-block Northwestern Pacific Railroad depot property for what they described as a landscaped civic plaza.

The land is between Central School on Caledonia Street — the site of the future city hall — and the Earl F. Dunphy waterfront park across Bridgeway.

They also approved for a second bond issue five parcels eyed for open space. They are: the south ridgelands, 30 acres; Cypress Ridge, 15.5 acres; Toyon Terrace, about 7 acres; Glen Grove, four acres, and the Glen, a half-acre parcel with stream and overhanging trees.

Only councilmen Sally Stanford opposed including the Glen in the open space package. She said the land could better be acquired by property owners in the area forming an assessment district.

Unanimously rejected for inclusion were the Napa Street extension, a 40-foot strip just north of Dunphy Park, and what was referred to as the Maggiora strip, a 60-foot railroad easement facing Bridgeway at Harbor Drive. Councilmen indicated that the city may still seek the two properties through negotiations when the owners are seeking approval for development projects on other waterfront lands.

They felt the railroad depot property, located near downtown and currently rented for a nursery, differed in character from the essentially undeveloped lands sought for open space and should be included in a separate ballot measure. It

MILL VALLEY TURKEY TROT GETS A BEAT

Turkeys can race to music after all in Mill Valley on Thanksgiving weekend, the city council decided last night.

Meeting briefly after a closed session on litigation, the council reversed its stand on musical entertainment as part of turkey races at Old Brown's Store on Nov. 29. On Monday the council had said there could be no music.

But last night councilmen voted 4-0, with Councilman Robert E. Capron absent, to allow a small nonamplified chamber or bluegrass music group to play while turkeys trot.

The races sponsored by the store will benefit the Big Brothers of Marin and San Francisco.

Development Foe Finds Self Cited

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

One of Marin's most outspoken opponents of virtually all coastal development yesterday was ordered to halt unauthorized construction of a riprap wall on the beach in front of his Bolinas home.

The North Central Coast Regional Commission directed Paul D. Kayfetz either to remove the rock or apply within a week for permit to complete the work.

Such work could threaten Stinson Beach State Park, the commission staff warned.

The executive director of the commission, Michael L. Fischer, declared in a certified letter to Kayfetz, an attorney, that the work violated the state's coastal conservation act. "My present intention," Fischer said, "is to recommend that the commission authorize a suit seeking the removal of the riprap material and the imposition of civil penalties for the violation of the act."

The law provides fines of up to $10,000 plus $500 a day for each day the violation continues.

Kayfetz charged that Fischer was pushing the issue because of differences between them over other permits.

(The work is being financed with a federal disaster loan for $19,500 from the Small Business Administration. The damage was done in January, 1973.)

Kayfetz told the Independent-Journal today that the repair work he is doing is exempt from the need for a commission permit since it is merely repair of rain and flood erosion of the cliff below his house.

Fischer's letter, however rejected that claim of exemption, saying the exemption was primarily intended to relieve such agencies and utilities as the Division of Highways or PG&E of the need to get a permit every time they have to undertake normal repair or maintenance. It was "meant to apply to manmade works," Fischer wrote.

"Even stretching the point in your case," he wrote Kayfetz, "such an interpretation would

Mansfield Predicts A Depression

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Bus drivers, coal miners, shipbuilders and delivery men were on strike today, and new layoffs were announced in the auto industry.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted another great depression unless the government forges a new era of cooperation, and for the first time without qualification, President Ford today said America faces recession.

The stock market reacted to the economic developments by dipping an average 37 cents a share yesterday. The Dow Jones index of 30 industrials plunged nearly 11 points, closing at just below 614.

The news was not all bad, however. An administration official said sugar prices would drop next year, the House Ways and Means Committee voted a tax break for families earning $15,000 or less, the dollar regained some strength on European money markets, and a tentative settlement was reached between striking delivery men and the United Parcel Service in the New York City area.

The worst economic news yesterday came from Detroit, where Chrysler announced it is closing all but one of its six U.S. auto plants and laying off almost 44,000 more workers for five weeks — from before Thanksgiving until after New Year's Day.

The latest move brings to about 15,000 the number of auto workers laid off by Chrysler, Ford and General Motors — almost a fourth of the total industry labor force.

Striking coal miners have put off a ratification vote on a tentative settlement, and there appears little chance work in the mines could resume before December in a strike that has caused thousands of layoffs in the steel industry.

About 16,000 Greyhound bus drivers went on strike Monday, shutting down the nation's biggest bus company, and more than 13,000 shipbuilders struck the Ingalls Shipyard last night, threatening costly delays in Navy construction projects worth $3 million. City officials, the Teamsters Union and United Parcel Service reached tentative agreement late yesterday to end a strike by about 4,000 delivery men that has tied up parcel delivery service in the New York City area for 84 days.

President Ford referred to the sagging world economy in a speech to the Japan Press Club.

"Like others, we suffer from inflation. Like others, we face recession," he said.

Drug Squad Restart Set

A whole new start on planning a countywide narcotics program was ordered yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors. The board also officially laid to rest the controversial City of San Rafael application for a $186,000 federal grant to set up a countywide narcotics law enforcement squad. (Other supervisors stories pages 9, 12 and 13.)

The supervisors instructed Bella Aaron and the county criminal justice planning agency to draft a new grant application. They asked Mrs. Aaron to fuse philosophies of law enforcement and drug user rehabilitation into a single operation capable of winning support from the cities and agencies that torpedoed the San Rafael plan.

The San Rafael City Council last month tossed the grant application ball to the supervisors after their proposed antidrug squad to be headed by Police Chief Lawrence R. Kelly ran into heavy criticism.

The supervisors ignored warnings from Sheriff Louis P. Mountanos that the state may take over the federal antidrug planning moneys and impose its own plans from above unless a local application is completed by Dec. 5.

Even though some councils opposed San Rafael's plan, it had total support from law enforcement in Marin, Mountanos argued.

"This is a political animal you have here; it's not going to fly" unless the squad is sanctioned by all city councils and

Shop Center Suit Raps Santa Rosa

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The long-standing dispute between the cities of Santa Rosa and Rohnert Park, each of whom plan to build large regional shopping centers, heated up further yesterday when Rohnert Park filed suit in U.S. District Court here, charging Santa Rosa with violating federal antitrust regulations.

The action names as defendants the city, its urban renewal agency, U.S. Housing and Urban Development Secretary James T. Lynn and Ernest Hahn, who with the renewal agency is a joint developer of Santa Rosa's center.

Through its San Francisco law firm of Cotton, Seligman and Ray, Rohnert Park is seeking an injunction to stop the Santa Rosa project, which, it claims, is illegally subsidized with federal funds.

Moderate Housing Sought In Belvedere

By REBECCA LARSEN

The first draft of a new general plan for Belvedere proposes an increase in the supply of housing for moderate-income persons and the elderly and promotes more use of public transit and bicycles.

The report was prepared by planner Genette E. Sonnesyn of San Francisco who is doing the job for $4,500. The city planning commission will review it in a series of hearings then forward it to the city council.

The report incorporates previous findings from a planning study by consultants Livingston and Blayney done in 1971 and from a city open space plan drawn in 1970.

Most of its new material deals with housing, circulation and community safety policies.

For example, Miss Sonnesyn says, as did Livingston and Blayney, that little future population growth is either probable or desirable in Belvedere in the future. As of 1974, the city had 2,650 people and 285 dwelling units.

She advises, as did the earlier report that residential density be controlled, building be only on legal size lots and that new construction harmonize with old.

In housing policies, she suggests that the city join the proposed Richardson Bay Communities Residential Review Board.

Someday, the city may want to use the Belvedere School site or city nursery school site to develop housing for the elderly housing development, she said. Belvedere should adopt a more liberal policy on the sometimes controversial "mother-in-law" apartments in single-family homes. They could be allowed, she says, "under specific, well-defined conditions for the purpose of expanding the housing supply for moderate-income households."

In the traffic and circulation category, she advises retaining the present road network and discouraging street widening or improvements except where

Novato Must Unload Surplus School Sites

The Novato Unified School District which once felt that it would have almost unlimited growth, now finds that it has surplus school sites valued at more than $1 million. (Another Novato schools story, page 39.)

According to the present state law, the school district must dispose of the sites or face a one per cent penalty starting July 1, 1975, Supt. James G. Bunker told district trustees last night.

Bunker reported that the district has 1,000 fewer students from kindergarten through sixth grade than it had in 1968. And, he said, with kindergarten pupils still fewer than in sixth grade classes, he expects the student population to continue to dwindle.

The district has six unused school sites, all elementary sites except a junior high site in San Marin. Sites and the value which the state puts on them are: Atherton Avenue, $120,641; Marin Oaks, $161,000; Mill Trumbull, $214,000; San Marin Elementary, $200,000 and San Marin Junior High School, $411,000.

The Novato Hills Elementary site adjacent to the Novato High School campus, was not considered as it can be added to that high school for additional playing fields.

Bunker said that the penalties on the sites would amount to approximately $11,000 a year and would be taken out of the money which the district normally would get from the state.

"The districts were urged to buy sites several years ago by the state so that they would have them when the development came," said trustee Jan Murray. The development has not come.

The board postponed any action on disposing of the sites pending further study of possible use of the sites and their fair market value.

2nd Marin Housing Board Member Quits

Robert E. Eklund Jr. of Novato has resigned from the Marin County Housing Authority's governing board, saying the agency is "so bogged down in political matters" that it can't do its job.

His resignation and that of Arthur Miller Jr. reduces the board, which meets tonight, to five members.

Miller quit Monday, charging that the board's function is to convince black people to remain in Marin City so they won't move into the rest of the county.

Eklund, an architect, appointed to the authority board in April of 1973, said he found his first months with the agency "enjoyable."

"Initially, we had a goals and objectives program which I believed could establish housing throughout the county for low and moderate-income families," he said. "But in the past months we have become so bogged down in political issues that the board has been diverted from the important business.

Eklund apparently referred to a lawsuit against the authority to get low-cost housing included in two Marin City redevelopment projects.

He also was talking about a squabble between the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and the authority over the authority board's decision to fire Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of both agencies.

Eklund charged that "a group of people who don't live in Marin City but claim to represent the people there has "constantly harasssed" the board to keep it from getting down to business.

"This group comes to meetings all the time and pressures the majority of the board to talk about the same things over and over. So the board members don't have the time to do what needs to be done," Eklund told the Independent-Journal.

Favorable Vote On Rocky Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The chairman of the Senate Rules Committee said today the panel will recommend Friday that Nelson A. Rockefeller be confirmed as vice president.

Chairman Howard Cannon, D-Nev., told reporters after a brief meeting of the committee that the panel's vote on Friday "will be favorable."

"I think the Senate will vote to confirm Mr. Rockefeller, based on what we know now," he said. "There has been nothing new that has come up to effect our decision."

The House begins hearings on the Rockefeller nomination tomorrow.

To Examine Nixon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A court-appointed medical team will examine former President Richard M. Nixon at his home in San Clemente on Monday to determine whether he is well enough to testify in the Watergate cover-up trial, it was announced today.

JET CRASH — Flame and smoke from the wreckage of a Lufthansa Airlines Boeing 747 jumbo jet rise behind firemen at work in the foreground after the plane crashed and exploded today shortly after takeoff from Nairobi airport. It was the first crash of a 747 in the five years the plane has been in service. (UPI Telephoto)

61 Die, 96 Survive As First 747 Jet Crashes In Nairobi

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A Lufthansa Boeing 747 airliner with 157 persons aboard faltered seconds after liftoff today and dropped tailfirst into a muddy field. Lufthansa said 61 persons were killed and that there were 96 survivors, many of them unharmed.

"We have just received word that of the 157 persons on board, 96 survived, including 13 crew members," an airline spokesman said in Frankfurt. "Fifty-five bodies were found and six are still missing.

Lufthansa said most of the passengers were West German businessmen and tourists but that at least one American was aboard. One unconfirmed report said a party of 12 Americans from the Los Angeles area was aboard and that at least some of them survived.

This was the first crash of one of the giant Boeing 747 jets since they went into service five years ago. The 747, capable of carrying 350 passengers, is considered by pilots to be the safest passenger plane in the world.

Cause of the crash was not known.

"There is no suspicion of sabotage," a Lufthansa spokesman said. "At the moment, we only have mysteries."

Witnesses and survivors said the plane, Lufthansa flight 340 from Frankfurt, bound for Johannesburg with 139 passengers and 18 crew members, lost power just after takeoff and plunged into a muddy field a mile from the end of the runway. Witnesses and one of the survivors said the pilot appeared to be trying to make an emergency landing.

The 747 hit tail first, plowing a 200-yard swath through the mud and grass, breaking into pieces and exploding into flames moments after the survivors scrambled through holes in the 230-foot fuselage and raced to safety.

Witnesses said the tail of the craft dropped and the entire plane descended quickly from about 500 feet scattering wreckage over a wide area. No one on the ground was hurt.

Nairobi hospital said 21 of the survivors had been admitted there, many of them requiring emergency surgery. One was reported in critical condition.

One survivor, Lynn Moorehouse of London, said she and her fellow passengers in the midsection of the plane made up most of the survivors, since the tail section all but disintegrated and the front of the craft was heavily damaged.

John Bing, a South African travel agent on the craft, said that "immediately after takeoff, there was a jerking. I suspected something had gone wrong.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Slow Progress

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto's plan to get commuters out of automobiles and onto public transportation one day a week is making slow progress, but he is not surprised.

"We deliberately set no early timetable on this program when we first proposed it because it takes time to change long standing habits," the mayor said yesterday.

A main problem is that most public transportation systems in the San Francisco Bay Area are jammed already during rush hours.

Coalition Seen

ROME (UPI) — Premier-designate Aldo Moro may be near the end of a search for a new coalition cabinet to end Italy's 48-day-old government crisis.

Officer Slain

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — An army officer kidnaped by leftist guerrillas 10 months ago was shot to death last night when police closed in on a "people's jail" located in the back of a speeding van.

Unity Move

HILTON HEAD, S.C. (UPI) — After spending three days under the palmettos declaring the nation's need for leadership and their party's need for unity, the Democratic Governors Conference came up short of both yesterday.

Ending their first gathering since the voters increased their numbers to 36, the Democratic governors passed a resolution urging congressional action to solve the nation's economic and energy problems.

Tunnel Rocked

SEOUL (UPI) — An explosion rocked a mysterious Communist-constructed underground tunnel beneath the Demilitarized Zone dividing North and South Korea today, killing a South Korean Army officer and wounding six soldiers, five of them Americans.

The explosion occurred only about 10 miles from a U.S. Army installation President Ford is scheduled to visit in less than 48 hours.

Welfare Down

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's welfare rolls continue to shrink despite rising unemployment and the troubled economy, according to the Department of Benefit Payments.

Brown Budget

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov.-elect Edmund G. Brown Jr. has taken over from retiring Gov. Ronald Reagan the huge task of writing the new $10 billion-plus state budget.

Verne Orr, Reagan's finance director, yesterday said all of his employees are reporting to Brown to iron out the new spending proposal, due within four days after Brown takes office Jan. 6.

Mass Transit Funds Measure In Trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A six-year, $11.8 billion program for mass transit systems today faced a possible derailment in the House.

As expected, the Senate approved the measure yesterday, 64-17. Not one senator spoke against the compromise bill.

But a simmering jurisdictional dispute threatened the legislation, both in the House Rules Committee and in the House.

The bill, strongly backed by President Ford and big-city mayors, would provide:

$7.8 billion for construction and improvement programs on an 80-20, federal-local matching basis.

$4 billion for either operating costs on a 50-50 basis or construction and improvement on an 80-20 basis.

The $7.8 billion would be granted on a case-by-case basis, but the $4 billion would be allocated on a formula based on population and population density.

A major test comes today when Rep. Dave Martin of Nebraska, ranking GOP member of the House Rules Committee, plans to demand that the panel vote on the bill. Martin claimed enough votes to clear the bill for floor action.

But before the election-period recess, the Rules Committee refused to release the bill because of a squabble between the Public Works and Banking Committees over jurisdiction.

The House earlier passed a mass transit bill from the Public Works Committee, but the measure before the Rules Committee was worked out by negotiators from the Banking Committee.

The feud has not abated. Even if the bill clears the Rules Committee, the squabble is expected to have a deep, perhaps fatal, impact on the House vote.

TODAY'S WORLD

"You're spoiling the surprise. But if you must know, that blank stub is for the check I wrote for your birthday tomorrow."

Committee Gives Nod To Tax Relief Measure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tax relief for more than 38 million Americans and an immediate end to the granddaddy of all tax loopholes, the oil depletion allowance, was approved yesterday by the House Ways and Means Committee.

Action on a chopped-down tax bill came during a sometimes dramatic session in which a soft-spoken Tennessee Republican, Rep. John J. Duncan, broke ranks with his GOP colleagues to cast the deciding margin in the 13-12 vote to end the depletion allowance.

Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., said he hoped to get the bill to the floor Dec. 4 or 5, but even if it passes the House, an almost certain filibuster by oil-state senators awaits it in the Senate.

If the bill should survive the House and the Senate in the few weeks remaining in this Congress, all taxpayers who use the standard deduction — an estimated 38.2 million — would get at least a small tax break.

For those with incomes of less than $15,000, the tax cut for the 1975 tax year would average about $55.

The minimum deduction, which the poor would get no matter what their income, would be increased from $1,300 to $1,600 on joint returns.

Oil companies were hit especially hard. The 22 per cent oil depletion allowance would drop to 15 per cent retroactive to last Jan. 1, and would end completely in six weeks, on Jan. 1, 1975.

A temporary excess profits tax — actually a graduated excise tax on crude oil prices — would be imposed for five years.

High Cancer Rate For Beer Users

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Two scientists say they have found a statistical relationship between beer drinking and cancer — but warned that does not necessarily mean beer causes the disease.

Statistics from 41 U.S. states and 24 foreign countries show that regions with the highest per capita beer consumption generally also have high rates of rectal and intestinal cancer the two researchers said.

The findings by Dr. James E. Enstrom of the UCLA School of Public Health and Dr. Norman E. Breslow of the University of Washington were published in the Journal of the National Cancer Institute.

Enstrom said the researchers looked for a relationship between cancer and consumption of beer, wine, liquor and cigarettes.

They found no corellation between any cancer and wine drinking, he said, but the statistics used were for 1960, when there were not many wine drinkers in the United States.

They found a relationship between hard liquor consumption and cancer of the esophagus in men, Enstrom said, but found many more statistical relationships involving beer.

Checked against 20 varieties of cancer for men and 19 for women, states where more beer is drunk had higher than average incidences of cancer of the large intestine, stomach, rectum and kidneys in both sexes, liver and breast in females and bladder in males, the study showed.

In the states with the lowest beer consumption — South Carolina, Alabama and Arkansas — the average resident drank about 26 quarts a year. The death rate from rectal cancer in those states is about 3 per 100,000 persons.

Rhode Island and New York, where per capita beer consumption is more than three times as much — about 80 quarts a year — have the highest rectal cancer mortality rates in the nation, about 10 per 100,000, or more than three times the death rate in the three southern states.

The same general pattern appeared in statistics from the 24 foreign countries surveyed, they said.

Wisconsin has the highest per capita beer consumption, an average 100 quarts a year, and ranked just behind New York and Rhode Island in deaths from rectal cancer, about 9 per 100,000.

California, with 59 quarts average, had seven deaths per 100,000.

A weakness of the study, the authors noted, was that it is based on statewide averages, not directly on beer drinkers.

But, they said, a study in New York showed that 35 per cent of men with rectal cancer and 31 per cent with intestinal cancer were beer drinkers, compared with 19 per cent beer drinkers in a control group.

$100 Million Sold In Vet Bonds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Bank of America has purchased $100 million in two separate bond issues to finance California veterans home and farm loans and community college construction.

The state treasurer's office, who sold the bonds yesterday, said the bank was the lowest of three bidders on the issues of $50 million each.

The Cal-Vet bonds were part of $350 million authorized by the voters last June to provide veterans with the low-interest loans. The community college bonds were part of $160 million approved by the voters in 1972 to finance a wide range of college construction programs.

cent, while fresh bird prices have climbed by 90 to 100 per cent.

Most grocery chains in Marin and Southern Sonoma apparently don't expect to profit on the sale of frozen turkeys — they deliberately set their prices at cost, or even less, to lure customers into their stores where they buy enough other merchandise to give the store an overall profit.

Ray Dal Poggetto, fish and meat manager at Petrini's Greenbrae store in the Bon Air Shopping Center, puts it this way: "We figure it's the one time of year everybody wants to buy turkey and so everybody is looking to save money — we don't blame 'em. So we sell them low. It gets people into the store and it's our way of thanking people who shop at Petrini's all year long."

Dal Poggetto said his store is charging 49 cents a pound for frozen birds and 79 cents for fresh ones.

His store sells roughly equal volumes of fresh and frozen birds, he said.

"Some people will pay a higher price for what they feel is a little nicer bird," he said of the fresh ones. But he added a cautionary note — "Frankly, most people can't really tell the difference between one and the other.

"If you bring a frozen bird home to your mother and she's used to having a fresh one she'll say it doesn't taste as good.

"Of course, if you buy a frozen one and then you thaw it out and tell her you stood there and watched the guy kill it, she'd say 'it's wonderful.'"

Robert Sanders, manager of the Cala Store at 2040 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Fairfax, said his store sells frozen toms for 46 cents and hens for 49. "But we don't make any money on them," he said, "that's for sure."

Later, as the holiday buying nears its peak just before Thanksgiving and Christmas, he'll have freshly-killed birds for 65 to 79 cents, Sanders said.

A Safeway spokesman said all Bay Area stores in his chain are selling frozen toms for 49 cents and hens for 53 cents.

Arthur Cader of Petaluma, whose farms at 1315 Ely Road, do a good business dealing only in fresh birds, said he is charging 79 cents for hens and slightly less for toms.

"What everybody wants is a 14-to-15 pound bird, which usually means hens," he explained.

Cader, who sells through advance orders, said he makes a profit on fresh birds and he claimed most other retailers do likewise. Current differences in prices of fresh and frozen birds seem to support his statement.

While turkey prices have increased in the past 10 years, has the quality of the gobblers themselves gotten any better?

Merritt of Nicholas Farms answers with an emphatic "yes."

His company's breeding experts, he explained, keep records on literally hundreds of thousands of parent birds, cross-breeding them systematically to produce birds with what growers call "good economic traits," primarily expressed as meat-to-bone ratio and, for breeders, egg-laying ability.

The 58-year-old founder of the Nicholas firm is regarded as something of a founding father for the scientific turkey breeding business.

Nicholas, who grew up on a farm in the Two Rock area west of Petaluma, is a graduate of Petaluma High School who, in the 1950s, became one of the first breeders to market white-feathered turkeys.

Before, most of the birds wore the bronze plumage still seen in wild turkeys. Now, white birds are the only ones in grocery stores.

More than feathers were changed by the application of modern technology to the big birds, which are cousins of peacocks, pheasants and barnyard chickens.

As Merritt explained, "The wild turkey lays 12 eggs a year. Ours average 75 to 85 and some lay more than 100. And the turkey's we've developed are bigger more tender and have more meat."

There are, in general, two basic types of birds on the Nicholas ranches.

One, regardless of individual gender, is dubbed the "female line". These are usually bred chiefly for their ability to lay large numbers of eggs. The "male line" birds, on the other hand, tend toward meatiness.

(Selective breeding has made domestic turkeys so big they are often physically unable to mate. Thus, the bird on your table is the result of artificial insemination.)

Each year, Nicholas farms uses a refrigerator-sized IBM computer to sort through records of all the firm's breeding stock, selecting birds with good characteristics to continue and improve the breed.

Merritt sees improving turkeys as one of the most important responsibilities of his company.

"There's a world food shortage and people are going to have to face that fact," he said.

"That means that if there's a sugar shortage in Poland, the price of sugar will go up in San Rafael. It's as simple as that, and the only answer for it is more production."

He believes turkeys will play an increasing role in feeding a hungry world because "they have a favorable feed-to-growth ratio (meaning that only about four months of feeding turns a chick into a plump, eating-sized bird), they're high in protein and low in fat and they can be raised on relatively small acreages."

So far, he said, the arid little nation of Israel has shown the grestest awareness of the good points of the turkey. Israelis eat more turkeys per capita than any nation in the world, Merritt said.

Are there any bad points about turkeys?

Merritt admitted turkeys have, but don't deserve, a reputation for being, well, basically dumb. Unintelligent.

"Hunters will tell you wild turkeys are very smart birds," he said.

"On the average, we raise these birds in very large groups and then judge them by the way they act in groups," he said.

"Sure, turkeys will stampeded. But so will people if you go into a theater and yell fire."

Ford Agrees On Stemming A-Spread

TOKYO (UPI) — Amid predictions the ruling Japanese government might fall within the week, President Ford agreed today with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka on the need to halt the spread of nuclear weapons and pledged closer ties between the two countries.

Ford wound up his hectic second full day in Tokyo at a banquet for Emperor Hirohito with a toast to "the government of Japan and millions and millions of Japanese."

Borrowing the words of the first Japanese envoy to the United States, Ford told Hirohito the most important lesson he had learned in his "memorable" trip to Japan was "the time has come when no nation may remain isolated and refuse to take part in the affairs of the rest of the world."

Ford began his day with a second round of talks with Tanaka, then addressed a luncheon at the Japan Press Club, watched a demonstration of martial arts and attended three cocktail parties prior to the banquet. One party was for leaders of the American community in Japan.

Tanaka and Ford issued a joint communique agreeing on the need to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons — a clear effort to appease Japanese sensitivities over recent reports that U.S. warships bearing atomic weapons have stopped in Japanese ports.

The communique also appeared to signal Japan's willingness, after initial opposition, to accept a Ford administration proposal for all oil consuming nations to cut their petroleum imports by 10 per cent.

But the agreements were shadowed by predictions from within Tanaka's own ruling Liberal Democratic party that the prime minister might be forced to resign under fire very shortly after he bids Ford a final farewell Saturday.

cover only 'replacement in kind.' You, however, are substantially altering the nature of the toe of the bluff."

If the toe of the bluff is covered with such riprap, Fischer predicted, "the effect upon beach sand replenishment could then be quite substantial." He stressed that "the natural process of bluff erosion is responsible for a major portion of the beach sand replenishment for Seadrift and the Stinson Beach State Park."

The letter noted that Kayfetz had been told several times by Fisher that such work would need a permit, twice verbally and once in writing.

The riprap is about 75 feet long and six feet high. Work on it began a week ago today, and is near completion. The commission's staff learned it was being done because of a telephoned complaint from a Bolinas resident. The Kayfetz home is at 8 Ocean Avenue.

Fischer also noted that the work by Kayfetz was inconsistent with a policy adopted by the commission stating that "works constructed to inhibit natural shoreline geologic processes (beach erosion, littoral drift, cliff retreat and landslides) are often ineffective, unsightly and result in unintended side effects and restrictions on shoreline use."

The policy also declares that such riprap works "that do not serve a necessary public service function shall not be constructed to inhibit these processes."

needed to remove safety hazards.

The present winding, narrow streets help discourage outside traffic from entering Belvedere, she notes. She thinks such traffic can be further discouraged by posting streets with signs saying that traffic is limited to residents, guests and service vehicles.

She suggests that Tiburon and Belvedere need more public transit including a "Dial-a-Bus" system to help people off the hills into the flatlands. She proposes a bike lane on San Rafael Avenue, lower auto speed limits to protect cyclists and better bike parking at the Tiburon ferry. She also calls for repair and expansion of city pedestrian paths and lanes.

To improve seismic safety, she recommends that Belvedere join in a proposed county-wide geological study with Belvedere's share of the cost being $500.

The city needs an evacuation plan in case of natural disaster. There should also be more inspection of existing structures as to hazards, she says.

City areas covered with eucalyptus should be cleaned regularly to prevent fire hazards, she notes. The planning commission should review the building code to update fire hazard protection.

To assure fire and police vehicle access on narrow roads, parking space limits should be painted on island streets and cars be cited when they overhang those limits.

The regulation of noise is not a problem now in Belvedere, she says. But if the situation changes, the planning commission should consider a noise ordinance.

Belvedere also should promote areawide regulation of construction noise.

the supervisors, warned Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr.

"I know families whose children have been destroyed by drugs," Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said. Neither an all-out enforcement program nor rehabilitation efforts alone are the answer, but a merger of the two is needed, he said.

Audience speakers argued that Sonoma County's big, federally funded drug war and "operation Royal Flush" mass arrests had clogged its courts and would cost local taxpayers more than the grant was worth. Others, including Michael Cowan of the Drug Abuse Technical Advisory Committee, complained that their criticisms of the San Rafael plan, delivered in a report in July, never had been answered. Cowal stressed that the plan lacked any basis for cooperation between enforcement agencies and rehabilitation units.

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste moved that the criminal justice planning agency be charged with creating the new plan, with "emphasis on control of drug pushers and de-emphasis on arresting drug users," combined with rehabilitation efforts. Both it and his motion to scrap the San Rafael application passed unanimously.

Mrs. Aaron later told the Independent-Journal that she doesn't know what federal agency will be asked to fund the revised program, because the funds San Rafael had sought were earmarked strictly for law enforcement, but not rehabilitation programs. She said the federal-state law enforcement planning agency would reabsorb the money requested in the San Rafael grant, for use in some other purely enforcement-related program.

pending in Sonoma County Superior Court against Rohnert Park, which it charges with improperly determining no major environmental damage would result from the center it is planning near the Highway 101 and Rohnert Park Expressway interchange.)

In the action filed yesterday, Rohnert Park claims the large area it set aside for commercial use in 1966 could not compete fairly with the federally-supported Santa Rosa center.

Rohnert Park charges that Santa Rosa'a planned center "represents an attempt to monopolize retail and general merchandise sales in Sonoma County and the Santa Rosa trade area, all in violation of antitrust laws."

The Santa Rosa project is being financed by a $16.5 million loan and a $12 million grant, both from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

James K. Burns, director of the Santa Rosa renewal agency, said the main reason for the city's plans for a 40-acre regional center is to rebuild a downtown area badly damaged by earthquakes in 1969.

also differs in that some expense would be involved in developing and maintaining it as a municipal plaza, whereas the open space lands would be kept in their natural state and would involve little or no expense after they are bought, councilmen agreed.

(A $260,000 bond issue to buy the railroad property failed in June 1973.)

Council members stressed that no building would be planned for the site, which would afford an unobstructed view from the new city hall to the park and Richardson Bay.

Councilmen will consider wording suggested by the city's bond counselor for the ballot measures at a special session at 5 p.m. Tuesday in council chambers on Bridgeway. At that meeting, they also will discuss cost of each of the parcels.

CLUBHOUSE TAKING SHAPE

With the framework for the gymnasium taking form and the walls of other parts of the building being enclosed, the Novato Boys Club on Wilson Avenue south of Vineyard Road begins to show what it eventually will look like.

Although the club has enough money to contract for the building, club officials instead are using volunteer labor to get more for their money. The club also owns the Mission Lodge motel whose income will be used to operate the club.

Novato Accepts Fuchs Land— Owner To Get $2,000 Per Acre

The Novato City Council last night accepted 7.5 acres of land west of O'Hair Park from Dr. Jerome Fuchs of Beverly Hills for park and open space.

The city is to pay Dr. Fuchs $15,000, or $2,000 an acre, for costs involved in the transaction.

Acceptance of the land was recommended both by the City Park and Recreation Commission and the City Planning Commission.

The Novato City Council Also:

CABLE TV — Voted 4-1 with councilman Fred F. Ruegg dissenting to have Wilsey and Ham of San Mateo make a cable TV rate study and authorized the staff to negotiate the fee, which is expected to be shared or paid entirely by Liberty Cable TV which is seeking a rate hike. The council also received a letter complaining about cable TV service and a petition with nine signatures opposing a rate increase.

TREE TRIMMING — Awarded a contract to J and B Tree Service Co. of Woodacre, lowest of four bidders, to trim trees on the south side of Novato Boulevard from Diablo Avenue to Wilson Avenue at a cost of $10,898.

TRAFFIC CONTROL — Approved stop signs on the Eagle Drive approach to County Club Drive and the Sherman Avenue approach to De Long Avenue, a yield sign on the Marin Valley Drive approach to Bolling Drive and 20-minute parking limit on the Diablo Avenue frontage of the 7-11 Store at Center Road and Diablo Avenue.

ANNEXATIONS — Approved annexation of 2.53 acres of land on the west side of McClay Avenue, south of Center Road, and set Jan. 14 for a public hearing on annexation of 404 acres at Hamilton Air Force Base and Tidelands east of the base.

A good stimulant to help the eyes adjust to darkness when driving at night is oxygen. An open window will provide all that is needed. Fresh air also will reduce the groggy feeling of being enclosed in the car.

Novato Buys More Center Land

Two more parcels for expansion of the Novato Civic Center were purchased by the Novato City Council last night.

The council voted to buy two parcels on Reichert Avenue from Russell and Virginia Zenk for $75,000 by a 3-1 vote with Councilman Fred F. Ruegg dissenting.

Councilman Dorothy P. Young, who wanted the matter continued to determine if relocation costs could be negotiated, abstained.

City Mgr. Phillip J. Brown said the estimated cost for relocation of renters living on the two parcels would be $13,880.

The parcel at 917 A and 917 B Reichert Avenue with two tenants was purchased at $35,000 and the parcel at 913-915 Reichert Avenue with two tenants was purchased at $40,000. The city also is to pay $175 for two stoves.

Brown said the city can collect rent from the tenants until they move.

Mayor David Price Jones said the council's policy is to be fair to the property owners and to pay the relocations costs and he saw no reason to delay action.

Councilman Ruegg, who is opposed to expanding the civic center at the present site, calculated the cost of the two purchases at $7.50 a square foot. "It's probably the most expensive land in town. If that's a good buy I don't belong on the council."

The council also received a letter from Betty Machado of 1424 Dawes Street saying a group is seeking 1,400 signatures to have a referendum on the March ballot on the civic center location.

She asked for "vote of approval" from the council for the drive and councilmen postponed action on the request until next Tuesday.

No-Lick Yule Stamp Tested

TWIN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service has selected the Twin Falls area to test a special pre-cancelled, self adhering, no-lick Christmas stamp.

The test model stamp, depicting the peace dove, peels off waxed paper and adheres directly to an envelope.

Because the stamp is printed with a pre-canceled notation, it does not have to go through cancellation machines.

Employees of the Times-News found, however, they could remove the supposedly nonreusable stamps from envelopes and reaffix them to another envelope.

One tester, using patience and steady fingers, separated the stamp from envelopes and reaffixed them on other envelopes 100 times. The stamp showed no sign of wearing out.

Petition Asks Boss To Stay

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Nearly 4,000 of the Department of Motor Vehicles' 6,500 employees have called on Edmund G. Brown Jr. to retain DMV Director Robert C. Cozens when Brown becomes governor in January.

Arneeta Brown, president of the California State Employees Association Chapter 134 which represents DMV workers, yesterday said she has sent Brown nearly 4,000 signatures of DMV employees on a petition urging Cozen's reappointment.

Cozen was appointed to the post by Gov. Ronald Reagan in December 1969.

Protest Renewed Against Renovation Of Restaurant

Sausalito Councilman Violeta Autumn last night renewed a protest first voiced last week against construction at the Valhalla restaurant owned by fellow Councilman Sally Stanford without benefit of a required conditional use permit. (Another Sausalito City Council story, page 1.)

Mrs. Autumn charged that alterations to the structure are more extensive than plans outlined when the city granted a building permit for the work.

Last week, the council rejected a request by Mrs. Autumn for a stop-work order on the project, but agreed that Miss Stanford must apply for a conditional use permit since the Valhalla, a restaurant in a residential neighborhood, is considered a nonconforming structure under zoning laws.

But Miss Stanford has remarked that she has no intention of applying for the permit and called the issue "nothing but a vendetta by Violeta Autumn against me."

Roland Mays, architect and contractor for the job, said the original construction application asked for permission to replace rotting timbers and to build a glass roof over an outside patio. A permit for additional work to accomodate the new roof had been requested in a new application, he said.

But public works director Norman Wohlschlaeger said the new application will not be considered by the city until Miss Stanford applies for a conditional use permit.

Mayor Evert H. Heynneman asked Mays, City Mgr. Thomas P. McKenzie and City Atty. Leland H. Jordan to work out a solution to the problem.

The Sausalito City Council also:

PELICAN HARBOR — Granted the proposed Pelican Harbor marina permission for dredging and to encroach on an underwater city street. Violeta Autumn opposed. Councilmen set Dec. 3 to hear an appeal by developer Ned Martin of a planning commission decision slashing from 102 to 60 the number of slips to be allowed at the marina.

BICYCLES — Agreed to enter a new state program for licensing bicycles.

MORTUARY — Was told by Wendell Joost that he is withdrawing his request for a mortuary in a renovated Victorian house at 100 Caledonia Street because change in the "economic climate" makes it impossible for him to obtain financing.

FILMS — Rejected a staff request to hike fees for commercial filming in the city from $75 to $500 a day until provisions can be developed for exempting small, independent filmmakers.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned until 5 p.m. Tuesday in city hall.

Youth Bicentennial Group To Be Formed

Interested youth are invited to attend an organizational meeting at 4 p.m. tomorrow in the Marin County Board of Supervisors chambers to form a youth committee as part of Marin's Bicentennial commission.

The meeting will be directed by Laurie Belfor of San Rafael, youth committee organizer, and Mrs. C. W. Owens, Girl Scout representative on the commission.

Probe Set Of Illness In Sausalito

With public and private in disagreement as to cause, the Sausalito City Council last night appointed a committee to investigate the possible source of a microscopic organism that has afflicted a number of residents with gastrointestinal sickness.

Asked to work on the problem with county health officer Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht were Councilman Robin Sweeny, resident Carol S. Peltz and Dr. James L. Fogle, a local physician who has treated many of the diarhea victims.

Dr. Albrecht told the council that a protozoan parasite called giardia has been identified as the culprit in the outbreak, but added that "many people are not convinced that things are any different in Sausalito than anywhere else in the county."

Dr. Fogle, however, disagreed, saying that at least six of the victims had been stricken with amoebic dysentery, not giardia, and that the illness has reached "Epidemic" proportions.

While Dr. Albrecht said that "at this time we do not know where the people got the bacteria," Dr. Fogle maintained it probably was transmitted through the water supply.

Plans are for a detailed questionaire to victims, seeking clues to the cause of the disorder, and to enlist aid from doctors and scientists at the University of California.

The illness has stricken dozens of Sausalitans in the past few months.

Flea Market To Be On Saturday

A flea market sponsored by the Santa Margarita Homeowners Association will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday at Christ Presbyterian Church on Del Gando Road in Terra Linda, a association spokesman said today.

Baked goods, appliances, plants, books, craft and art works will be on sale, according to Charlotte Schmid, association secretary.

Giftmaking activities for children and a prize drawing are also planned, she said.

THAT TIME OF THE YEAR AGAIN

A workman puts in place a Christmas decoration at the corner of Fourth and B streets — signaling that Christmas is just around the corner. Fourth Street began to take on the festive look yesterday with many merchants beginning to ready windows for the Christmas look.

20th Century Werewolf In Petaluma

The man who bites people is still at large in Petaluma, police reported today.

He surfaced at the Jack in the Box hamburger stand on East Washington Street Monday night where witnesses said he picked a fight with Albert A. Gonsalves, 19, of 611 Kentucky Street.

Gonsalves later reported that the assailant, described as 18 years old and brown-haired, ordered him to "split" and then attacked when Gonsalves refused to comply.

The attacker pulled the victim's hair, pinched him and struck him before inflicting a severe bite on his neck, Gonsalves said. He told police he was saved from further harm when the attacker's friends pulled him off.

Petaluma police said they will charge the assailant with assault with intent to kill — if they catch him. Gonsalves was treated for his wound at Hillcrest Hospital.

Supervisors Approve Condominium Project

A 42-unit condominium development in Santa Venetia won master plan approval yesterday from Marin County supervisors.

The project, pared down from 60 units during the last two months, is to be located on North San Pedro Road between Meriam Drive and Granlee Road.

It has been opposed by area residents as adding to already bad traffic, sewage and drainage conditions.

The board's approval came at the urging of supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, who said the number of dwellings should be cut to 42 and duplexes built instead of larger buildings.

Representatives of the owner-developer agreed. The board's vote was unanimous.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

APPOINTMENTS — Appointed Candy Smith of San Rafael to the county youth commission and William Wilson of San Rafael to the county manpower commission.

SETTLEMENT — Accepted an out-of-court settlement offer from the state director of finance over the county's Civic Center security suit. The county had sued to recover $396,328 and the state offered a settlement of $343,137.

CABINS — Asked Parks Director Pierre W. Joske to get estimates on repairing 13 state-owned cabins at Steep Ravine on Mount Tamalpais. Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini would like the county to rent the cabins to the public.

OAK MANOR — Pumped in $5,000 more for temporary slide repairs in the Oak Manor subdivision near Fairfax. The county has authorized $30,000 toward the project to date, while only one property owner has contributed anything — $500.

CENSUS — Authorized spending $3,024 for a special census of the Novato area conducted by the city for state tax revenue purposes, among other things. County participation was recommended by acting planning director Werner von Gundell, who said it would provide updated demographic information for his department.

BIDS — Rejected bids for new draperies at the Civic Center and will advertise again after the first bidding procedure because of foul-ups by the public works department.

NAME CHANGE — Postponed action on a proposal from the county auditorium, cultural and fair advisory commission that the auditorium-fairgrounds area be named the "Marin County Civic Center Complex." Supervisors voiced general disapproval of the name but will discuss it again next week.

TRIP — Authorized three county supervisors — Robert A. Roumiguiere, Gary T. Giacomini and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. — to travel to Anaheim last night to attend a three-day session of the County Supervisors Association of California. Other officials attending the conference are asst. county administrator Thomas F. Campanella, personnel director Maren F. Rinne, parks director Pierre W. Joske, county counsel Douglas J. Maloney and public works director Ray W. Foreaker Jr.

Trial Is Set For Paroled Murderer

A paroled murderer, said to be in California illegally, is facing charges of threatening to shoot a San Anselmo schoolteacher he once dated.

Robert Mitsuigi Furutani, 32, is scheduled to go to trial Dec. 2 in Marin Municipal Court. He is charged with making threatening telephone calls, a misdemeanor.

Three days later, Furutani is due for a municipal court hearing on whether he should be extradited to Hawaii, where he is on parole after a first degree murder conviction.

Assistant district attorney Joshua W. Thomas said Furutani, of 1052 Redwood Highway, Apt. 11, Mill Valley, left Hawaii without permission, thus violting his parole.

After meeting a San Anselmo woman at a church function, he dated her a few times, then began telephoning her,threatening to take a gun and shoot her, Thomas said.

Police from San Anselmo and San Rafael, tipped off that Furutani was living in Marin, questioned him several times, then arrested him, Thomas said.

2 Arrested In Robbery

Petaluma police yesterday arrested two men they say stole a purse full of cash from an apartment.

Gregory Ronald Andrews, 21, of 7323 College View Drive, Rohnert Park, an unemployed cannery worker, and Wayne Patrick Johnson, 18, of 2044 Willow Drive, Petaluma, a jobless laborer, were arrested at about 4 p.m. at the corner of Washington and Howard Streets.

Police say the two men and three others, still at large, entered a B Street apartment at about 2 p.m. while the occupant was in the bathroom. They took her purse and the $523 it contained, she later told police.

Andrews and Johnson were booked into Sonoma County Jail on suspicion of grand theft and conspiracy. Bond was set at $5,000 for each.

No Senior Fees

SAN JOSE (UPI) — John Bunzel, president of San Jose State University, proposed yesterday to admit senior citizens free of the $136 per semester fees.

Fairfax School Bond Issue To Be Discussed

The Fairfax School District Board last night set 7:45 p.m. Jan. 14 at White Hill School as the time to decide whether or not the district should ballot a bond issue measure to finance a new school structure.

The district's multipurpose room committee has recommended trustees place a lease-purchase bond issue of about $800,000 on the ballot to build a multipurpose facility at White Hill School.

A $750,000 bond issue for a community gymansium structure at White Hill School was rejected by voters last June.

The board next meets at 7:45 p.m. Dec. 3 at Manor School.

Facts On Heart Attacks Given

DALLAS (UPI) — A team of doctors said today cigarette smokers run a very high risk of sudden fatal heart attacks, but there appears to be no link between drinking and heart attack deaths.

Dr. Arthur L. Klatsky of the Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program in Oakland, Calif., told the American Heart Association conference of a study of 197 men who died within 24 hours of an attack.

"Cigarette smoking was positively associated with sudden cardiac death; coffee drinking, heavy aspirin use, and alcohol showed no statistically significant association," Klatsky said.

Library Bids Delayed To Consult Consultant

Bids on Petaluma's new library are being delayed so a consultant who claims she wasn't consulted can have a chance to review the city's plans.

Bertha Hellum, of the Robert S. Meyer firm the city hired to help draw up plans for the new facility approved by voters last March, told the city council in a letter Monday that architect Robert J. Gianelli had not shown her all his plans for the structure.

Gianelli countered that Mrs. Hellums had been unavailable for several weeks.

In an effort to mend relations with the consultant, who threatened to quit over the dispute, the council decided to hold off calling for bids on the project, which now carries an estimated price tag of $1 million, until some time next month.

The Petaluma City Council also:

BIKEWAYS — Referred to city staff a bicycle path proposal drawn up by an ad hoc committee, to determine whether it is compatible with the plan drawn up last year by the Lampman and Associates consulting firm. Some council members are dissatisfied with the committees recommendation that busy East Washington Street, the main east-west thoroughfare in Petaluma, be the site of a bike lane.

RANCH — Set a minimum bid price of $1,900 a year for the leasing of the Lafferty Ranch east of the city. The council has decided the city-owned property should continue to be used for grazing.

CHLORINE — Agreed to purchase chlorine for the water plant and city pool for $18,927 from the Continental Chemical Co., lowest of two bidders.

MEETING — Set a special session for 7:30 p.m. next Monday to interview candidates for a vacancy on the planning commission and the recreation, music and parks commission.

LARKSPUR POST OFFICE PICKETED

Jamie Foley, 8, carries a sign on the picket line in front of the Larkspur Post Office, while her mother, Patricia (right), of the ad-hoc Friends of the Larkspur Post Office, prepares to pass out petitions to passersby. Unhappy postal employees and residents are trying to persuade the U.S. Postal Service to drop its plan to transfer letter-carriers to the Corte Madera facility, and will try tonight to get the backing of the Larkspur City Council. They collected more than 150 signatures on petitions in two hours of picketing from 2 to 4 p.m. yesterday, a spokesman said. (Photo by Jim Kean)

Housing Plan Goals To Be Revised

The housing goals of the Marin County General Plan must be revised, the county board of supervisors was told yesterday. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

While there was general agreement that there must be revision, the extent of the modifications will be dealt with next Tuesday at 8:30 a.m. by the board.

Discussion was postponed yesterday after the board received testimony from a number of county residents on the plan.

The Marin Coalition, a group representing primarily construction, labor and real estate interests, submitted documeats saying it feels the plan's growth control limits will have "serious negative social and economic consequences." The proposals to limit growth will exclude moderate and middle-income families, it said.

Donald A. Beacock, a Corte Madera real estate agent and vice chairman of the group, told supervisors that the "plan requires such extensive revision and adjustments of targets that it may never be within the means of most Marinites."

He offered his group's assistance in making revisions, which he did not detail.

Pamela Lloyd, member-elect to the Marin Municipal Water District board, said growth controls must remain a part of the plan or voters will oppose new growth as they have in the past in defeating water bond issues.

"Voters are going to have to be convinced that growth control is on the way," she said. "The county has to be responsive to the voters."

Philip Buskirk, a member of the city-county planning council's economic committee, said the housing industry should be given a free rein until it is demonstrated that county growth is disruptive.

He warned that growth controls as now proposed will tend to work an economic hardship on the middle class by limiting the supply of housing, which will escalate its cost. He also warned of increased taxes.

Buskirk said his committee could find no definition of disruptive growth and urged that a free housing market, without the constraints of growth control, would aid in reducing the economic impact on the middle class.

When growth can be shown to be disruptive, it should be controlled, he added.

Others addressing the supervisors urged that the goals of providing 1,100 low and moderate housing units per year be reduced. Adelaide P. Wilson, a member of the city-county planning council, urged the goals be left alone.

"It's difficult to provide housing, but that's no reason to junk the goals," she said.

Supervisors, faced with a full agenda, postponed discussion on the plan until next week.

Parapsychology Talk Slated

Robert L. Pfleiger of Novato will talk about parapsychology at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Novato branch library as part of the talent bank program.

Pflieger has studied at the Faculty of Astrological Studies in London, the College Internationale Des Astrolgia in Puerto Rico and the Rosicrucian Order in Oceanside.

There is no admission charge for the talk sponsored by the dynamic learning study section of the Novato branch of the American Association of University Women, and the library.

Enrollment Drops In San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Enrollment in San Francisco's public schools has decreased by a fifth in the past five years.

Robert Weeks, research director, told the Board of Education yesterday that the present enrollment in grades from kindergarten through high school was 73,040, or 19,139 less than during the 1969-70 school year.

Park Plan's Phase Two Is Approved

Phase II of development of the John F. McInnis Park in Santa Venetia was launched yesterday as county supervisors authorized moving ahead with construction plans for two swimming pools and six tennis courts.

Construction, estimated to cost about $880,000, is expected next year and will include a large dressing room facility near the pool complex, lawn and turf area and related improvements.

The second phase of the park includes construction of a controversial 50-meter swimming pool. The county has already agreed to help finance such a pool at the Indian Valley Colleges campus in Novato. A shallow children's pool also will be built at the park next year.

The park's swim and tennis center calls for four pools, including a deep diving pool and an instructional pool. Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste joined other supervisors in approving schematic drawings of the facility, but said he would never approve four pools.

This year, about $600,000 is allocated for construction of an access road to the park and for underground utilities, among other site improvements.

Maloney Can 'Cash In' Vacation

Marin County supervisors yesterday bent the county's salary policies and authorized County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney to "cash in" more than one week of vacation if he chooses.

The board's unanimous decision came at the request of Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini who noted the county was barred by contract from giving Maloney a mid-year salary hike.

"I recently have been most impressed by the high level of performance exhibited by the county counsel's office and the excellent results obtained in recent litigation . . .," Giacomini wrote.

"It is an anomaly that despite these and other successes, the county counsel, because of an agreement executed prior to this unanticipated and severe inflation, received a raise last year which was less than half the average percentage of department head raises."

Maloney, the highest paid county employee, signed a four-year contract last year with an annual 5 per cent salary-hike clause. He currently earns $37,800 plus fringe benefits.

Other department heads were given salary hikes of 10 to 15 per cent, plus the right to redeem up to one week of accumulated vacation time.

The board's unanimous action yesterday allows Maloney to cash in as much accumulated vacation time as he wants. He currently has about four weeks of vacation saved, which equals $2,908.

"The approach is consistent with the contract, would not cost the county anything, and would partially ameliorate the inequity that has arisen because of unanticipated events," Giacomini said.

Regular county employees, who work under similar long-term contracts, are not authorized to cash in unused vacation time.

Novato Youth Arrested In Chico Sexual Attack

CHICO — An 18-year-old Novato youth is one of three persons arrested on suspicion of rape after a Chico State University coed accused them of shoving her into a bedroom and attacking her at a fraternity house party.

The girl told sheriff deputies that four to six men raped her and forced her to submit to oral sex.

Arrested and held in lieu of $5,000 bail each are Michael Edward Martin of Novato, Edward Bellegarde Jr., 22, of Lafayette, and Scott Tachiera, 20, of San Leandro.

University officials said freshman Martin and the other youths have been suspended. Deputies said the rape occurred Thursday night during a social hour at the Lambda Pi fraternity house.

The 18-year-old girl reported she had cried out for help, but that no one heard her because of a band playing downstairs.

Officers said they are seeking three more men for questioning.

Last year a young girl was murdered at a Chico fraternity dance and her body dumped in an orchard, according to deputies.

Bill, Mike Show Wows The Board

The pilot performance of what could become the Bill and Mike show premiered before the Marin County Board of Supervisors yesterday. It wowed the audience.

The stars were Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, and Assemblyman-elect Michael Wornum, D-Mill Valley. Wornum is supposed to succeed Bagley. But his maneuvering to delay taking office and thus assure that his successor is picked by the incoming Democratic governor, Edmund G. (Jerry) Brown, have kept Wornum in the headlines since the Nov. 5 election.

Bagley popped unannounced into the supervisors' chamber yesterday, to present Wornum with several gifts.

For a warmup he told the board how great all the supervisors had been to work with during his 14 years in Sacramento.

Then Bagley waved aloft an elaborate parchment.

"Here's the Great Seal of California. And a replica of the Bear Flag for Michael . . .

"We give these to all the little kiddies who come to the Capitol," said Bagley. The audience roared.

With additional flourishes, Bagley gave Wornum several booklets on the California Legislature, an obsolete book of rules, and finally a copy of the California Constitution, which he noted was opened to Article 20, Section Three.

"I want you to memorize that section and say it out loud," Bagley instructed.

(Article 20, Section Three is the Oath of Office for legislators.)

Wornum took the book and read the passage, his lips moving silently.

"You'd like me to read that out loud now?" he asked Bagley. "I think I get the message. I'm sure I'll do what is right one of these days."

The audience applauded lustily.

Wornum taped his chairman's gavel and hastily went back to supervisorial business.

Supervisors Accept Tiscornia Easement

Marin County supervisors yesterday accepted a 10-foot trail easement running through the picturesque A. A. Tiscornia property in Baltimore Canyon near Larkspur.

The board's action ends a four-year fight to acquire access through the canyon to Mount Tamalpais.

Joi Losee of Larkspur, who led the fight, appeared yesterday to urge the board to delay signing the document and to return to the negotiating table and request inclusion of Larkspur Creek in the easement.

Deputy County Counsel Thomas G. Hendericks and Parks Director Pierre W. Joske said such action would be unnecessary since the creek is protected from development under existing county ordinances.

The county's acceptance of the easement means it will drop its suit against the Tiscornia Estate. That suit, filed in 1972, was based on a supreme court decision that unrestrained public use of an area for more than five years constitutes a public right to future use.

The path has been used for more than 50 years by the public and is shown on a 1925 hiking map of Marin County.

Building Is On Agenda

Discussion of how to proceed in building the administrative services center at College of Marin and the lecture hall-theater at Indian Valley Colleges, which the Marin Community College District board put off at its last meeting, will be held tonight when the board meets at 7:30 p.m. in the multi-purpose room at IVC.

The board will meet in closed session at 7 p.m. to discuss administrators' salaries with its negotiator, administrator John A. Grasham, district superintendent.

Pink Predominant In Private Palace Quarters Of President

TOKYO (UPI) — White House reporters had a tour of Gerald Ford's private quarters while he was out today and learned the President is sleeping in a pink-canopied bed during his stay at Japan's state guest house.

Ford has a bar near the bed, and his favorite pipes are spread about his suite of rooms at the Geihinkan, the former Akasaka Palace.

A group of reporters were permited to tour Ford's rooms while the President was meeting elsewhere with Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

The ornate presidential suite is located on the second floor of the Geihinkan, recently renovated at a cost of $33 million, and pink is the predominant color throughout.

There are pink and white tapestry panels, a pink dressing room and a marble bath.

Ford's sitting room has ivory and gold woodwork, ceilings about 15 feet high and marble fireplaces with large mirrors above the mantles.

The President can look out on a large fountain from his small balcony and can see the Tokyo skyline.

Decorators have placed empire furniture throughout the suite and White House stationery is on a writing table.

A table set up next to the presidential bar had an ice bucket and various hard liquors including gin and vermouth along with a bottle of stuffed olives.

Two call buttons and a White House telephone with note pad are at Ford's bedside, and underneath a night table is a tape deck.

Ford has kept his regular routine at the Geihinkan, arising about 6 a.m. and going through some sitting-up exercises. His usual breakfast is melon, an english muffin and tea.

2 Open Space Bonds Are Given To Bank Of America

Two open space bonds were awarded yesterday by Marin County supervisors to the Bank of America, which offered the lowest interest rates of several bids received.

The first bond totaling $850,000, approved by voters of the Greenbrae-Kentfield County Service Area for a creekside marsh, was awarded after the bank offered a 20-year interest rate of 6.1388 per cent.

The second bond totaling $500,000, approved by voters of the Santa Venetia County Service Area to purchase open space on the San Pedro Ridge, was awarded on a 20-year interest bid of 6.3490 per cent.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said he will release tax rate figures in the near future.

In related action, the board signed a $461,000 purchase agreement for the 256-acre Fierman property overlooking Santa Venetia. The action was expected and will use funds from the bond issue.

Earlier, the board, sitting as the board of directors of the county open space district, agreed to join the Santa Venetia County Service Area in its purchase of other lands. The board set a $250,000 ceiling.

The open space district board also agreed to help the Homestead Valley Community Service Area with its purchase of land, up to $113,250.

THE PERFECT HOST

Charles Krug Chenin Blanc, 5th
Wente Grey Riesling 5th

Your Thanksgiving meal deserves the luxury of truly fine wines. Two excellent choices are Charles Krug Chenin Blanc and Wente Grey Riesling. Either of these wines will be on the best terms with your turkey, stuffing, and cranberry sauce.

Charles Krug Chenin Blanc wine will appeal to those who prefer a medium dry wine with a rich fruity taste. Wente Grey Riesling , in contrast, is a more dry white wine with a delightfully fragrant aroma. The taste of this pleasing wine can be described as soft and mild.

A three hour chilling period is recommended for either of these hosts.

Charles Krug Chenin Blanc is $2.75 a fifth and Wente Grey Riesling is $2.50 a fifth.

Students Get The Facts, Not Fiction, On Careers

By PAUL CANE

The work of a real-life attorney is far different from the glamorous life of television courtroom fighters Perry Mason or Owen Marshall.

And very few physicians save three lives within an hour like Marcus Welby seems to be able to do each week.

And yet, the fields of law and medicine can be rewarding occupations for a life's work, high school students were told yesterday in Sir Francis Drake High School's "Career Day."

More than 40 representatives of personal service occupations — from teaching and counseling to Peace Corps work and other social services — gathered yesterday to give students an honest appraisal of the trials and tribulations of their careers.

Approximately 600 students from high schools all over Marin attended the two-hour program. Yesterday's event is the first of two such career introductions sponsored this year by the Marin County Industry Education Council.

Sometimes glamorous, but more often routine and of minor significance, the work of an attorney is far from what most conceive it to be, said private practicing attorney Sandra Musser.

"Most of my cases are boring. They're tiny little problems that ordinary people have. I do all kinds of things that are deadly dull — but I never know when something really exciting is going to come along, either," she said.

She, and the four others who made up the legal panel, were acclaimed by students as the most entertaining — and informative — of the 10 discussion groups.

"I wish the panel could have talked longer," one girl complained as she left.

Selected for each panel were members representing the whole spectrum of the profession.

Also on the law panel was Asher Rubin, a member of Attorney General Evelle Younger's staff. He painted a very different picture of his work, noting that his office — acting for the State of California — undertakes lawsuits against the federal government, the Navy, and large companies alleged to be harming the state or its environment.

Another different view of the legal profession was described by Robert Lowe, a law student working for the Legal Aid Society of Marin. "Generally, people who are downtrodden and have no place to go end up at our door," he said.

Questions from the audience varied from the simple to the complex.

"What is litigation, anyway?" one girl asked the legal panelists.

"It means taking somebody to court," replied attorney Musser.

"That's what we teach you in law school — how to talk so nobody understands what you mean," joked John Gray, assistant dean of the University of San Francisco law school.

Another youth asked Gray what college majors are best to prepare for law school.

"It doesn't matter what you take — just do well at it, and be at the top of your class," the panel agreed.

Although reaction to the law panel was overwhelmingly favorable, a teaching-recreational service discussion was deemed boring by most students present.

(Reaction to other talks ranged from good to fair, according to Ralph A. Philbrook, Drake career education coordinator.)

Members of the teaching-recreation panel conducted a dialogue among themselves because students, uninterested, asked few questions.

San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Director Gary S. Howell told the group that shortened work weeks and increased leisure time made the potential for jobs in the recreation field almost unlimited.

But Peggy Rabe, a teacher at Mill Valley Middle School, said she "hated to sound like the voice of doom" but that the market for teachers was "very, very tight."

Common questions in all panels were those from girls who asked if sexual discrimination was evident in the respective careers. Some said it was, others said it was not — but almost all agreed that sex barriers in jobs are breaking down.

In fact, nursery school teacher Carol Cooper told students that men are being hired in increasing numbers in her profession, previously thought of as an all-female occupation.

A DREAMY CAREER — Some students listen, captivated, as San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Director Gary S. Howell discusses the need for recreation employees, while others, like the young man in the foreground, doze off for an afternoon nap. This was the scene yesterday in 10 panel discussions about personal service careers in Sir Francis Drake High School's "Career Day." (Photo by Bob Hax)

Narcotics Drive Seeks 'Mr. Big'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A federal attorney who is in San Francisco to organize a drive against narcotics says that, "What we're interested in is quality defendants."

"We're going after Mr. Big in the dope business," said John Gibbons, one of three assistant U.S. attorneys in San Francisco to organize a task force.

Gibbons said his target was the "man who puts up the money — who can afford to buy and rent airplanes for flights over the Mexican border and who can give couriers thousands of dollars to make buys in Bangkok."

Money To Decide Issue On Two Middle Schools

Reed School District trustees voted unanimously last night to keep the district's two middle schools open next year if Supt. Ralph D. Giovanello can show by Dec. 17 how the district can afford it.

But trustees indicated that they will close Reedland Woods Middle School next September if Giovanello cannot cut costs enough by combining the schools' administrations and other methods.

The district has become strapped for money because of declining enrollment and rising costs and already anticipates over spending its income this year.

While the board indicated that it expects only one middle school to survive, parent pressure to maintain both prompted the board's four-week delay of the decision and the chance for Giovanello to come up with a way to oblige.

Giovanello said that keeping both Reedland Woods and Del Mar Middle Schools while combining their administration would save only some $19,000.

"Why are we talking about this if it isn't feasible?" asked trustee Margaret Jones of retaining the two middle schools under one administration next year. "Even with a revenue election we will have to close some schools eventually."

But most of the 125 parents, students and teachers in the audience favored keeping the schools open.

The board then listed possible causes of action if it finds retaining the two schools unworkable:

1. Close Reedland Woods Middle School and move its seventh and eighth graders to Del Mar School next year.
2. Leave sixth graders at elementary schools they now attend as fifth graders.
3. Reduce school administration through closing Reedland Woods.
4. Explore sale of Tiburon School, already closed, and district lands at North Central and Ring Point sites.
5. Give the City of Tiburon and other public agencies a date by which to notify the district of interest in any of Reed District's sites or facilities.

Trustees also decided to continue study sharing its facilities and negotiating district boundaries with adjacent school districts with an eye to increasing Reed District enrollment.

Rustree Robert K. Ockner said he is uncertain that district enrollment will continue to drop, while teachers favor retaining the middle school with sixth grade intact.

Board president Leo Souza and trustee Charles Patterson favored a tax rate election next March. But Souza pointed out that if an increase passed, the state would equalize part of the funds among districts throughout California.

The board will vote on its final plan for next year at 8 p.m. Dec. 17 at Del Mar School, 105 Avenida Miraflores, Tiburon.

SPEAKER — Sister Margaret Eilermann, executive director of the Catholic Social Services of Marin, will be guest speaker at a United Bay Area Crusade "Thanks To You" party Tuesday between 4 and 5:30 p.m. at Peacock Gap Country Club in San Rafael. Dick Doughty will be master of ceremonies and music will be by Ruby.

Bogus Doctor Sentenced To Six-Month Jail Term

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — A Tiburon man, arrested for fraudulently posing as a doctor, yesterday was sentenced to six months in Alameda County Jail and placed on three years' probation, after pleading guilty to one count of grand theft. Other charges were dismissed.

Donald D. Thomas, 40, will serve a concurrent six-months jail sentence imposed in Marin Municipal Court on a misdemeanor count of making a false financial statement.

Thomas was arrested in July when his identity was uncovered after he applied for a $36,000-a-year job at an Oakland hospital. He had worked since April as a doctor at a San Francisco laboratory, using papers — apparently stolen — identifying him as Robert Jon Swanson, M.D., also a Tiburon resident.

Thomas had leased an auto from RAB Motors of San Rafael, using Swanson's identification. When he failed to make a payment, the auto agency called the real doctor, who notified authorities. Thomas was arrested in San Rafael in June on a forgery count. While awaiting prosecution, he applied for the Oakland job, still posing as Swanson.

Southbound 101 To Open Late

The southbound lanes of the Highway 101 bypass in Novato are scheduled to open Dec. 16 or 17, two weeks later than the target date, according to state resident engineer Edward H. Gregoritch.

When the northbound lanes opened Oct. 15, the contractor, Freeman-Sondgroth aimed for a Dec. 1 opening of the southbound lanes. There hasn't been enough time to get the work finished by then, Gregoritch said.

The new opening date depends on an absence of major storms that could delay the work, he said.

Film On Kennedy Assassination Set

"Rush to Judgment," a film by Mark Lane critical of the handling of the investigation of John F. Kennedy's assassination, will be shown tomorrow at 12:30 p.m. in room B of the college center at College of Marin.

It is sponsored by the Committee to Investigate Political Assassinations, a student organization. Admission is 25 cents.

San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

MONTGOMERY WARD

Vodka Takes Over As Top Drink

NEW YORK (UPI) — Belly up to the bar, boys, and have a belt — of vodka and orange juice. Vodka and orange juice?

Fraid so. Vodka has just replaced bourbon as the nation's favorite hard alcoholic drink.

Apparently even two-fisted drinkers who once dismissed vodka as a drink for silly girls and sissies are swilling it. In shot and beer towns such as Detroit, taverns in tough factory neighborhoods report selling a lot more vodka than bourbon or whiskey in the past four or five months.

A big seller at the Blue Moon Lounge in the Motor City is something called the Copperhead — vodka and grapefruit juice.

"It's getting so you have to wear frills to get a place at the bar," muttered one dismayed belter.

"It's like the prohibition era - bathtub gin and orange juice," said an executive for a New York bourbon distiller.

"The trend is toward lighter liquors. A lot of young people are using vodka, which has very little flavor, with sweet mixes. All they taste is 7-Up."

Even in Atlanta, where a wholesaler said: "This is a bourbon area — probably the strongest bourbon area of the whole country" — the single best-selling liquor is Smirnoff vodka.

J. Richard Grieb, president of Smirnoff division of Heublein, thinks the reason vodka has had such a dramatic growth in the last 10 years is because it mixes "with whole lot of flavors people like. Vodka doesn't interfere with the flavor."

"The gap, if it exists, is very small," conceded one, who declined to be identified. Last year, he said, bourbon and vodka were running "very, very close" with bourbon slightly ahead.

Grieb said few hard figures are available for 1974 but government statistics show vodka running ahead.

JACK J. TIECH
$750,000 Ransom paid

Steel Exec Released By Kidnapers

KINGS POINT, N.Y. (UPI) — The co-owner of a Brooklyn steel products company, whose kidnaping a week ago was kept secret by authorities, was released unharmed last night after his family paid a $750,000 ransom.

The victim, Jack J. Teich, 34, was freed by his kidnapers on a Grand Central Parkway service road near Kennedy International Airport.

Teich, still wearing the clothes he had on when kidnaped, located a telephone booth and called his home and later was picked up by the FBI.

The FBI and Nassau County police kept news of Teich's abduction from his home in this luxurious north shore Long Island community secret while more than 200 policemen and FBI agents searched for him and his abductors.

They said today they had no suspects.

The FBI said the ransom was dropped off near track 17 at Pennsylvania Station about 2½ hours before Teich was released.

Teich, co-owner with his father and brother of the Acme Steel Partition Corp. of Brooklyn, was handcuffed and kept in chains during much of his weeklong captivity.

"He appears to be in good spirits," said Henry Schultz, special agent in charge of the FBI's New York criminal division office.

The Long Island Daily press said today it had learned of the kidnaping of the steel executive last Wednesday but withheld publication at the request of authorities.

Hard To Tell Quints Apart

CATONSVILLE, Md. (UPI) — Now that all of the Rohrer quintuplets are home from the hospital their parents say one of the biggest problems is telling them apart.

"I don't really know how to tell who's who," their mother, Karen Rohrer, said yesterday as Michelle, Belinda and Jennifer joined Russell and Sandra at the family's home here.

"Maybe we should tattoo the babies' feet," her husband, Charles, 33, a bakery worker, suggested jokingly.

The three girls, who were too small to leave University Hospital in Baltimore when the first two quints went home Nov. 13, made the trip here yesterday in the arms of their parents and grandparents.

Joint Meeting

The Tiburon City Council and planning and parks and recreation commissions will meet today at 8 p.m. at city hall to discuss city policies on recreation, park development, open space purchases, consolidation with Belvedere and annexation, according to City Mgr. Robert L. Kleinert.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

OXY's Returns Should Improve

By DAVID R. SARGENT

Q. Since 1968, I have bought 400 shares of Occidental Petroleum (HYSE), average out at $20 per share. As I am retiring soon on only $600 monthly, I would appreciate your advice on what action to take on this stock. — J.M.

A. Management's projections for 1974 operating results of $5-per-share profit and $5.5 to $6 billion in revenues was supported by OXY's excellent third-quarter report. Earnings in the nine months reached $4.22 a share vs. 72 cents the year earlier, while revenues hit $4.5 billion, up 88 per cent year to year. OXY is considering changing to LIFO accounting, which would reduce 1974 net by about 55 cents a share. The improvement in operating results has generated an increase in the company's cash flow and working capital positions. Thus, resumption of a dividend on the common seems to be a reasonable expectation.

In view of the growing contributions from the company's chemical and coal divisions, the potential inherent in its exploration program, improved financial position and the favorable settlement of a long pending legal battle, Occidental, at only 2.2 times officially estimated earnings, is worth holding for recovery.

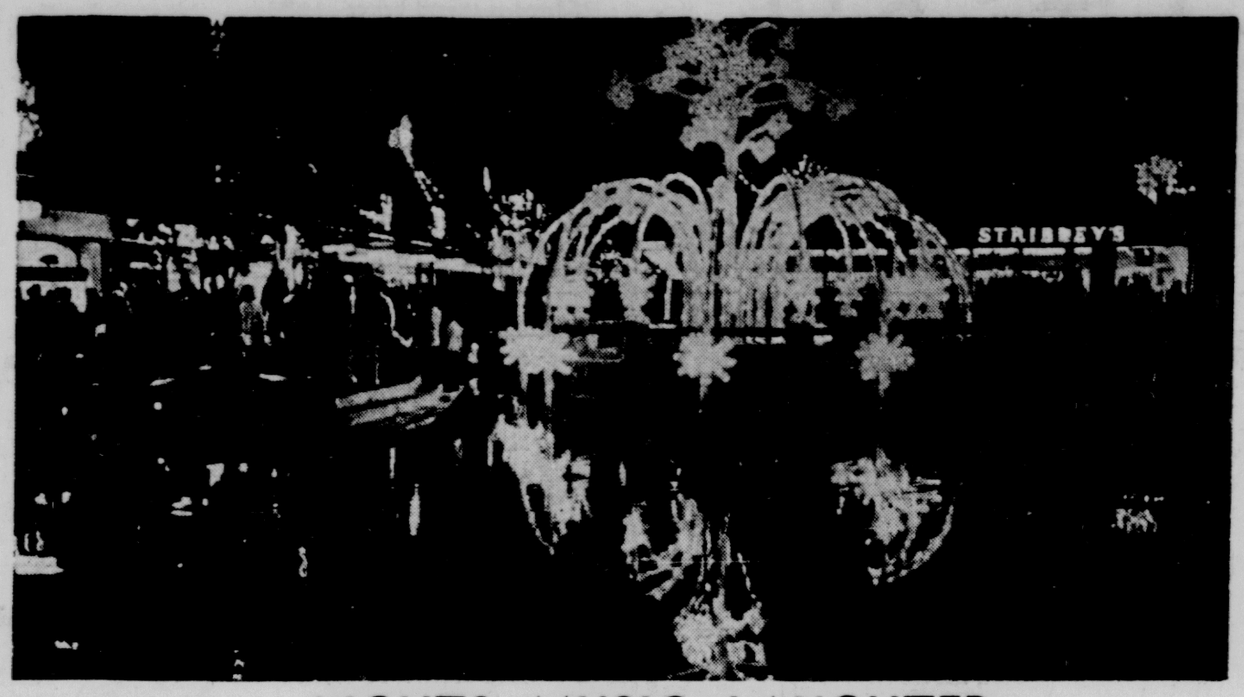
Q. I hold $20,000 in two bonds, which pay interest in February, August, June and December. I will soon have $60,000 more to invest in bonds paying interest in the other eight months. What do you recommend? — H.B.

A. About $15,000 invested in each of the four following bonds, rated BBB to AA, will provide income in the months not covered by your present holdings. These are: Baltimore Gas & Electric 10s of 1982, Consumers Power 11¼s of 1982, General Telephone & Electronics 9⅜s of 1999 and Niagara Mohawk 12.6s of 1981. Interest of $6,484 annually on this package represents a current yield of 10.7 per cent. The Niagara Mohawk general mortgate bond sells above par but is not redeemable. Also selling above par, the Baltimore Gas & Electric issue is protected until 1980 from redemption under terms of the sinking fund and is price-protected against regular call. The General Telephone bond, which is non-refundable before 1984, is selling below par. Consumers Power 11s of 1982 are non-redeemable before 1981.

(Mr. Sargent cannot answer all mail personally, but will answer all questions possible in his column.)

Silver Prices

NEW YORK (UPI) — Handy and Harman today quoted silver at $4.360 cents per fine ounce down 13.5 cents. Engelhard quoted silver bullion at $4.360 down 13.5 cents and fabricated silver at $4.469 down 10.8 cents.



LIGHTS, MUSIC, LAUGHTER

This old fashioned Christmas scene will brighten The Mall at Northgate this Friday night with a public "lights on ceremony" at 7:30 p.m., accompanied by a chorus of young voices singing Christmas carols. Thousands of tiny, brilliant lights will sparkle, while lighted garlands and huge snowflakes cascade from the roofs and around the central fountain area. The choral entourage of more than 75 voices include the junior high school students from the Dixie School District Junior High music classes and Honor Chorus, performing under the direction of Mrs. Jan Chaffin.

Stocks Edge Higher In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some selective buying pushed prices slightly higher today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange despite concern over the nation's deepening recession.

In light of the beating the market has taken lately, analysts said investors did some bargain hunting among the blue chips and glamors. Dupont, a big loser yesterday, gained 2, Johnson & Johnson 2¼, and IBM, Burroughs, Texas Instruments, Digital Equipment and Pfizer a point or more each.

Many investors, however, were held back by reports the United Mine Workers Union Bargaining Council would not approve a tentative new contract for rank and file members. This will prolong the nationwide coal strike, now in its second week, and further disrupt the nation's already faltering economy.

The ripple effects of the coal strike and cutbacks in the automobile industry because of lagging sales are being felt in many other industries. This is leading to other layoffs.

Wall Street also was bothered by the possibility of war in the Middle East, which would result in another oil embargo.

Earnings Drop Is Reported By J. C. Penney

NEW YORK (BW) — J. C. Penney Co. Inc. yesterday reported a 14.4 per cent decline in net income for the third quarter.

Chairman Donald V. Seibert said net earnings for the 13 weeks ended Oct. 26 amounted to $41.9 million, or 71 cents per share, down from last year's $49 million, or 84 cents per share.

The department store chain's sales for the third quarter rose 13.3 per cent to a record $1,766.1 million from $1,558.9 million.

For the 39 weeks, net income was off 4.7 per cent to $114.5 million, or $1.77 per share, from 1973's $109.6 million, or $1.88 per share.

As previously reported, sales for the nine months were up 13.1 per cent to a record $4,800.6 million, compared with $4,243.8 million in 1973.

Seibert attributed the lower earnings to the cumulative effect of a number of factors "working against us," particularly interest expense, a decline in gross margin and rising operating costs.

Brezhnev Plans Visit To Syria

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Communist party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev will visit Syria following his summit meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Cairo in mid-January, the official Soviet Tass news agency said today.

Arab sources in Moscow said visits to other Arab capitals may be added later.

The Tass announcement coincided with reports by Western defense sources in London that the Soviet Union's latest shipments of advanced weapons to Syria have included about 150 medium-range ground-to-ground missiles capable of hitting Israel's major cities.

Such weapons, the sources told UPI diplomatic correspondent K.C. Thaler, have greatly increased Syria's offensive power.

The missiles were said to be both the Frog, with an approximately 40-mile range, and the Scud, a heavier warhead capable of hitting Tel Aviv from Syrian territory.

The experts estimated that further shipments now under way could boost the Damascus government's total missile strength to 200 of these rockets.

Egypt was said to have a small stock of these weapons but to lag behind Syria.

Arab commentators, meantime, said the guerrilla attack yesterday on Beit Shean had escalated the risk of another war in the Middle East. They expressed fear Israel might try to capitalize on the situation by launching a massive attack on Palestinians in Lebanon and elsewhere and seek to scuttle growing international support for the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Israel declared a "war of terror" to rid the Middle East of Arab guerrillas following the attack on Beit Shean in which five Israelis, including two women, and three guerrillas were killed.

The Saudi Arabian Riyadh Radio said King Faisal met today with PLO leader Yasser Arafat to discuss the present Arab situation and various matters related to the Palestinian problem.

Arafat flew to Riyadh late yesterday from Cairo where he held talks with Sadat.

In Amman, the Jordanian weekly newspaper Al Liwa today attacked Arafat for a PLO statement laying claim to the kingdom of Jordan.

"By making this claim, the leader of PLO has uncovered his real intentions and his dreams and the dreams of the group he is leading," the newspaper said.

Al Liwa referred to a recent statement by Farouk Kaddoumi, head of the PLO's political section, who said, "Jordan is ours and Palestine is our Palestine."

"We will establish our national entity on all this land after it has been liberated completely from Zionist presence and the agent reactionary king (Hussein of Jordan.)" Kaddoumi said in a message sent to a students' conference in Baghdad last week.

In Damascus, the Popular Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine took responsibility for the Beit Shean raid and vowed to "strike at the enemy until the liberation of our land from Zionist occupation."

CARLOS BEE
Named committee chairman

Bee Won't Seek Term As Speaker

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Carlos Bee says he will not seek re-election as speaker pro tem and he has been appointed chairman of the Intergovernmental Relations Committee.

Bee, D-Hayward, held the No. 2 parliamentary post in the Assembly 13 of the past 16 years. The speaker pro tem is elected by the full Assembly and presides in the absence of the speaker.

Bee's announcement yesterday clears the way for the active candidacy of Assembly members. Assemblyman Mike Cullen, D-Long Beach, announced yesterday he would seek the post.

Another possible candidate is Pauline Davis, D-Portola, who was appointed assistant speaker pro tem during the last session.

When the assistantship was created, outgoing Assemblyman John Quimby, D-San Bernardino, charged the move was an avenue to relieve Bee as speaker pro tem. Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, vehemently denied the allegation.

McCarthy said he appointed Bee as chairman of the Intergovernmental Relations Committee because the post "requires experience and leadership more than any other single committee in the legislature."

The committee was established in the mid-1960s to work on problems affecting both California and other governmental agencies, including Mexico. The chairman has traditionally represented the state on the Council of State Governments and participated in the National Legislative Leadership Conference.

Bee said he was "delighted" with the appointment that would offer him the opportunity to make use of "my legislative experience in a broader fashion than running the legislature's sessions."

Fake Papers Figure Is Identified

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Police inspectors have named a man they want in connection with the theft of 39 death certificates believed to have been used in the production of fake identification papers.

Inspectors Mike Dower and Walter Kracke said yesterday the man they seek is Carl E. Jordan, 41, for whom a grand theft and forgery warrant has been issued in nearby Alameda County.

The death certificates, for youngsters, were stolen from the San Francisco Health Department and detectives noted that subsequently applications were made for birth certificates bearing the same names.

Jordan is sought because a crime laboratory director, John G. Shimoda, says his handwriting matches that on 35 of the 39 applications for birth certificates.

Inspectors Dower and Kracke also said Jordan had been an acquaintance of two men arrested last week while carrying false identification papers.

James R. Fleming, 31, and Donald Gascon, 39, the two men, carried drivers' licenses and other papers bearing the names taken from the missing death certificates.

Dower and Kracke said Jordan had been sentenced for burglary, theft and forgery in Louisiana and for grand theft in Los Angeles County.

Awesome Display By Prep Runners

MORAGA — High school cross country teams from the Oregon Border to the East Bay bowed to the power of the Marin County Athletic League yesterday as Redwood, San Rafael and Tamalpais dominated the North Coast Section meet at St. Mary's College.

In an unprecedented showing for the MCAL, Redwood and San Rafael finished one-two in the varsity event, and Tam took both the frosh-soph and girls' races.

Redwood, which won the NCS two years ago, placed all five of its runners in the top 30 to take the varsity event with 69 points. San Rafael, which beat Redwood last week in the Division III meet, had 110 points yesterday, and Castro Valley was third with 126.

There were 12 teams in each event, the four top finishers from last week's three division qualifying meets.

By moving freshman phenom Rod Berry up to the varsity, Redwood coach Doug Basham gave his team the added strength needed to overhaul San Rafael. Berry, who won the Division III frosh-soph race in record time, placed 14th for the parent team.

Ray Green of San Rafael was the first MCAL runner across the finish line, placing fifth in a time of 15:23. Hal Schulz of Redwood was 10th and Steve Locey of Tam 12th. Roy Kissin of San Ramon, last year's runner-up, won as expected in 14:54.

Tam won the frosh-soph race with 67 points to 88 for Pleasant Hill and 132 for El Cerrito. Bruce Gregg of Redwood and Aran Collier of Tam, both freshmen, came in second and fourth. Glenn Borland of Del Norte won the race in 10:08.

In the girls' event, Tam finished with 66 points, ahead of Los Lomas with 83 and Pleasant Hill with 114. Linda Broderick, who won last year for Tam, came in second this time behind Kathy Costello of Pleasant Hill.

Maggie Keyes of Tam, Laurie Scharninghausen of San Rafael and Wendy Severinghaus of

Novato, San Marin Dominate Prep All-League Team

Novato and San Marin, the champion and runnerup schools in the Marin County Athletic League football race, last night claimed more than half of the first team positions on the 1974 all-league team.

Coaches from the seven MCAL schools honored a total of 41 players, naming a 12-man first team offense and a 13-man defense. San Marin claimed seven first positions, Novato six. San Rafael had five, Tamalpais four, Terra Linda two and Drake one.

Novato's Steve Hoog, who led the MCAL in both receiving and scoring, gained special recognition by being the only player named both on offense and defense. Hoog's teammate, Mike Moroski, was an easy choice at quarterback.

San Marin's Wayne Roche, who led the MCAL in rushing for the second straight year, was a unanimous choice and the only repeater on the team. Bob Bennett, also from San Marin, and Kevin Murphy of Tam, the second and third leading rushers, are the other first team backs.

Murphy was also named as the league's best punter in honorable mention voting.

Bennett is the only junior named to the offense, but two juniors, Brett Schaake of San Marin and Mike Kirby of Terra Linda, made the defensive unit as backs.

Giants Switching To Basketball

If you can't win in baseball, try basketball.

At least that's what some of the San Francisco Giants must be saying these days. Some of them are going to be in Marin and they'll be wearing basketball shorts, not baseball pants.

It's not that they are worried that their boss, Horace Stoneham, is going out of business. It's probably just an easier way to stay in shape during the off-season.

The handful of Giant players, with some help from former teammates, will be playing against the Drake High School faculty team Friday night in the San Anselmo school's gym.

On the Giants' team are pitchers Jim Barr and Charlie Williams, first baseman Dave Kingman and outfielders Gary Matthews and Garry Maddox. The help will come from former Giant pitcher Don Carrithers of the Montreal Expos, former Giant catcher Ken Rudolph of the St. Louis Cardinals and his Cards' teammate Keith Hernandez.

The "game" starts at 8 p.m. with admission prices of $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students. Proceeds will go to the Drake student body fund.

BOB DINSMORE, general manager of San Rafael's own KTIM, has been elected president of the Marin County Warriors Boosters Club. Chip Chapman, the shoe man, and Rich Nave, the bowling man, are the vice presidents.

First item on the agenda is a bus trip to the Warriors' game against New Orleans Jazz in Oakland Coliseum Tuesday, Dec. 3. Cost is $6.75 to include bus transportation, ticket, and a few tall, cool ones on the bus. Departure from Nave Lanes is 5:45 p.m. Those of you interested in going, or in joining the boosters, write or send checks to Warriors Booster Club, 5800 Redwood Highway, Novato.

GEORGE ADAMS of Kentfield, remembered by Marin County football fans for his play at Redwood and College of Marin, is now an assistant football coach and teacher at Moreau High School in Hayward.

A running back, Adams played two years at St. Mary's College after his Marin County days. George's head coach at Moreau is Al Vermeil, brother of Dick Vermeil, head coach at UCLA.

LAST FISHING REPORT sent to this office by Mike Crean of Spanish Flat Resort at Lake Berryessa included this choice item: "Most boats are averaging one to two fish per boat which means fishing is fair." I wonder how bad things would have to be for Mike to rate fishing "poor?" Could you imagine spending a day in a boat with a couple of buddies and coming up with one trout total? Fair indeed!

KNBR DISC JOCKEY Frank Dill of San Rafael, a man who once broadcast University of California football games on that station, will return to Memorial Stadium in Berkeley Saturday for the Big Game but in a different role. Frank, no shy one he, will lead the Cal rooting section in a halftime cheer.

Frank got the invitation from Cal pom pon committee head Ann Block and yell leader Ken Harter after Dill recalled over the air about leading a yell for University of Pacific earlier this season.

Warriors Fall In Buffalo

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The Golden State Warriors take on the Boston Celtics here tonight after getting buried in Buffalo under a blizzard of 75 points in the second half, 28 of them by Bob McAdoo.

The 111-106 loss to the Braves in Buffalo yesterday was the third in 10 National Basketball Association games this month for the Warriors, but a loss by Seattle allowed them to retain their 2½-game lead in the Pacific Division.

The victory was Buffalo's eighth straight, a team record, and gave the Braves the best record in the league 12-3. The Warriors are 11-5.

McAdoo finished with 43 points, and Rick Barry paced the losers with 31. Barry is leading the NBA in individual scoring with an average of 31.5 points a game, and McAdoo, the runner-up, moved closer with a 30.9 average.

In the first half Buffalo made only 14 of 59 field goal tries, or 23.7 per cent, but in the second half the Braves hit on 29 of 48 for 60 per cent and outrebounded Golden State 26-17. McAdoo connected on 10 of 17 from the field in the second half and led the Braves in rebounding with 19.

"That's got to be one of the all-time great comebacks," said Buffalo Coach Jack Ransay.

"That gang in there," he said, motioning toward the Braves' dressing room, "those guys are something else."

A baseline shot by Gar Heard, who had 16 points and 18 rebounds, put Buffalo ahead to stay at 85-83 with 1 minute of play left.

Charlie Johnson contributed 16 and Jeff Mullins 14 to the Warrior total.

Rangers' Young Burroughs Is Most Valuable Player

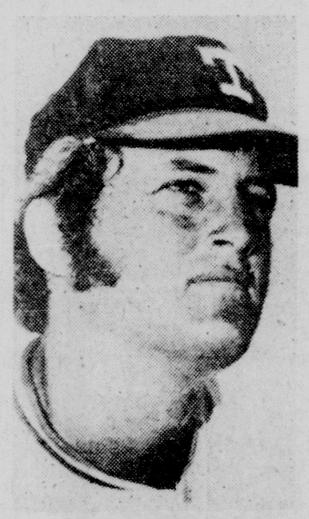
NEW YORK (UPI) — Jeff Burroughs of the Texas Rangers, a protege of Ted Williams who started the 1974 season hoping to avoid the "sophomore jinx," was voted the American League's most valuable player today by a decisive margin over a trio of the world champion Oakland A's.

The 23-year old native of Long Beach, third youngest player ever to win an MVP award, received 248 points in voting by a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Stan Musial in 1943 and Vida Blue in 1971 were the only players ever to win the award at a younger age.

Following Burroughs in the voting were the Oakland Trio—Joe Rudi with 161½ points, Sal Bando with 143½ and Reggie Jackson with 119—with Ferguson Jenkins of the Rangers fifth at 118 points.

"It's the greatest honor a player can get," said Burroughs when notified of his election. "And it makes it even greater being only 23 years old and in my second year of major league ball.

"I have to say that Ted Williams taught me to think at the plate a little more—that hitting isn't just walking up there and taking three swipes," Burroughs added. "And I also have to say that (manager) Billy Martin was a terrific influence on me. It was really nice to start to win after we had been the dogs of baseball for two years. The year just kept getting more exciting as it went along."



JEFF BURROUGHS
Young winner

Burroughs, who is known to his teammates as "Mr. America" because of his powerful build and enormous batting power, hit .301, connected for 25 homers and led the league with 118 runs batted in last season.

"My only real goal when I started the 1974 season was to avoid what they call the sophomore jinx," Burroughs said. "I had no idea that I might be a candidate for the MVP. I knew I had a decent year in 1973. I just wanted to come back and have a good season."

Signed by Bob Short in 1969 on the personal recommendation of Ted Williams, Burroughs played parts of seasons with Washington and Texas in 1970, 1971 and 1972 before hitting .279 with 30 homers and 85 RBI for the Rangers in 1973.

Burroughs received 10 first-place votes, five for second, three for third, one for sixth and one for ninth—the only player named on all 24 ballots. Rudi had 5½ first-place votes and Bando 3½—one writer voting for a tie—Jenkins had three and Jackson, the 1973 winner, and the A's 25-game winner, Jim Hunter, one each.

Burroughs is the first player of an expansion team to win the MVP award.

Football Cold War Is Heating Up Again

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — The cold war between Ed Garvey and the National Football League is heating up again.

Garvey, the executive director of the NFL Players Association, said yesterday he had been informed by the league that it intended to cut each roster by 11 players next season, from 47 to 36. But a spokesman for the NFL Management Council, which represents the league in negotiations, accused Garvey of misrepresentation.

Garvey met with the New York Jets for nearly 90 minutes after practice yesterday and defensive back Steve Tannen, the club's player representative, said later that Garvey had informed the club the rosters would be cut to 36 players next year.

"I got a letter from John Thompson (head of the Management Council) dated Oct. 22 advising me that the squad limit would return to 36," said Garvey in a nearly deserted dressing room. "All player reps have been told and it will appear in our newsletter this week. The fundamental problem in not having an agreement with the owners is that you don't know exactly what they can or cannot do."

The players struck for more than 40 days this summer but returned to work and have been playing the season without a contract.

But the Management Council explained things differently.

"The constitution and by-laws of the NFL have provided every year since 1964 for a 36-man player limit," said Terry Bledsoe, director of information for the Council. "The letter Garvey refers to is one in which John Thompson reminded him that the increase in roster adapted for the 1974 season arose from a special situation brought about by the NFL players strike and is not to be considered a change in the basic active player limit per club of 36 or less."

Bledsoe said Thompson merely was advising Garvey that the current 47-man roster should not be considered a precedent.

DISMAL STREAK LIVES

Seals Blow Their Chance

LANDOVER, Md. (UPI) — Now the California Golden Seals have not won in the road in the last 18 tries. And they would seem to have blown their best chance to end that sorry streak last night.

They called on the expansion Washington Capitals and put a rested Gilles Meloche in the nets and still came out on the short end of a 6-4 decision.

The win broke a 14-game winless streak for Washington, which is now 2-15-4. California is 3-13-4.

The NHL's only black player, Mike Marson, had two goals after not scoring a point in his first 16 games.

Coach Marshall Johnston, reportedly fighting for his job, had kept Meloche out of the nets Sunday and let Gary Simmons take the 10-0 thumping against the New York Rangers to keep Meloche rested for this one.

But the Seals' defense still caved in as Washington outshot California 27-25.

Dave Hreschkosy hit a goal that tied things at 3-3 for the Seals late in the second stanza but Washington got three quick third period goals to ice the win.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

When To Yield Right-Of-Way

A sailboat with an auxiliary engine was entering a harbor one day last summer. It was under power so therefore, in the eyes of the law, was a power boat. The skipped tried to make an abrupt maneuver near a breakwater to stay clear of a sailboat. As he did so, he ran into and damaged another small sailboat also trying to stay out of the way of the other boat.

The outcome of the resulting court case was that the judge, who was obviously not a sailor, became so confused that he imposed a penalty on the luckless motor sailer skipper far out of proportion to the seriousness of his lapse of judgment.

This situation emphasizes the need for a power boat skipper to know the rules governing sailboats so that if he should approach two sailboats, he will know what to expect of each, and stay clear of both, as the law requires.

Here's what the Rules of the Road say about sailboats approaching each other with the possibility of collision. (All three sets of rules, International, Inland and Great Lakes agree on these sailing rules).

1. A sailing vessel which is running free shall keep out of the way of a vessel which is close hauled.

2. A vessel which is close hauled on the port tack shall keep out of the way of a vessel which is close hauled on the starboard tack.

3. When both are running free, with the wind on different sides, the vessel which has the wind on the port side shall keep out of the way of the other.

4. When both are running free, with the wind on the same side, the vessel which is to windward shall keep out of the way of the vessel which is to leeward.

5. A vessel which has the wind aft shall keep out of the way of the other vessel.

Clip this outline of the law and keep it on your boat. By referring to it when you observe sailboats maneuvering you will become familiar with their actions and the reasons for them. This brief discussion of the law was prompted by the many questions I was asked this summer:

Q. What is a "privileged" vessel?

A. If under the Rules of the Road, one craft has the right of way over another, it is the privileged vessel. The one that must keep out of the way is called "burdened" vessel.

Q. What does "close-hauled" mean?

A. Sailing against the wind, or with the wind coming from ahead. Most boaters know that a sailboat can't travel directly into the wind but makes good speed at an angle of 45 degrees of the wind.

Q. Define "running free".

A. This is the opposite of close hauled. It means sailing with the wind, with the wind coming from behind the boat. Sailing downwind.

Q. Do the Rules of the Road apply to a yacht race? Is there a good text on racing under sail?

A. The Rules of the Road are the law, and are always in force. All maneuvers in a yacht race are always made within the rules which are designed to prevent collisions. The best book I have ever read on racing is "The Rules of Yacht Racing" by Robert E. Smith, a world authority. It's published by Pocket Books at $1.95.

Q. What privilege does a scuba diver have if he is flying the diver's flag? (A red flag with a diagonal white stripe).

A. In a few states the law requires all boats to stay clear of a diver's flag — usually 100 feet or more. But generally speaking the flag is only a warning that there is a diver below and no law demands that a boat stay clear. You would feel badly if you chewed up the diver with your prop, however, wouldn't you?

Four players from College of Marin were honored last night in voting for the 1974 Camino Norte Conference all-league football team.

Poor Surf Causes Meet Postponement

HONOLULU (AP) — Competition in the world professional surfing championships was postponed again yesterday because of poor surf.

Thirty-six professional surfers, including six women, are waiting to begin preliminary heats along Oahu's north shore. The meet may be postponed several days, a spokesman said.

NBA ROUNDUP

Knicks' Savvy Pays Off

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

The Washington Bullets are a "dream team," in the mold of the old Boston Celtics and the New York Knicks of several years ago. But their time has not yet come.

They have a fine balance of size and speed, depth and versatility—the ingredients of a championship squad. In the first half against New York last night, the Bullets clearly convinced the Knicks and as they worked the ball around for good shots, played splendid defense and controlled the backboards to take a 55-43 lead.

In the second half, the Knicks made some adjustments and proved to everyone that the Bullets still have some lessons to learn as they carved out a nervous 86-85 victory.

"We've got the talent," said K.C. Jones, Washington's disappointed coach. "You couldn't design a much better team. But we have to learn to help each other out more and to keep our attack consistent. We let up tonight and they burned us."

New York, no matchup man for man with the Bullets, punctured the illusion of Washington's invincibility with guile and precision, attacking the taller, stronger and faster Bullets by gambling on defense and running them dizzy with a quick-passing fluid offense. The Knicks were patient toreadors and in the end Walt Frazier was the matador who delivered the fatal blow.

With one second left in the game, after 10 lead changes in the last eight minutes and the Bullets leading 85-84, Frazier leaped over the outstretched arms of Elvin Hayes for his 16th rebound of the game and then tapped in the winning basket while still in mid-air. Fouled on the play, Frazier cooly missed the free throw on purpose to let time expire.

Frazier, whose rebounding total tied a career high, scored 17 points in the game, eight in the last period. He also had six assists. Earl Monroe led the Knicks with 22 points but in the fourth quarter, whenever a big play was needed, Frazier was there, stealing the ball, throwing assists and directing traffic.

In other NBA games, Buffalo, playing without Ernie DiGregorio and Jim McMillian, beat Golden State 111-106, Atlanta downed Seattle 122-113, Kansas City-Omaha defeated Detroit 97-87, Milwaukee whipped Phoenix 122-108, Houston beat Cleveland 94-85 and Portland stopped Chicago 98-92 in overtime.

Hawks 122, Sonics 113

John Drew scored 24 of his game high 34 points in the second half to pace Atlanta. Aiding Drew was Dean Meminger with 26 points and Tom Van Arsdale with 23.

Kings 97, Pistons 87

Jimmy Walker scored seven straight points late in the final quarter to lead KC-Omaha. Walker, who finished with 23 points, started his string after the Pistons had narrowed the Kings' lead to one point, 82-81, with less than five minutes left.

Bucks 122, Suns 108

Milwaukee broke the longest losing streak in its history—11 games—on the strength of newly-acquired Jim Price's career-high 43-points.

Rockets 94, Cavs 85

Mike Newlin hit 24 points and Zaid Abdul-Azid pulled down 18 rebounds to lead Houston to its fourth win in a row and moved the Rockets to within one game of the Central Division-leading Bullets.

Blazers 98, Bulls 92

Sidney Wicks scored 25 points and Portland held Chicago scoreless for nearly five minutes in overtime to win. The Blazers played without center Bill Walton for the second straight game. Walton is recovering from a dislocated finger.

McKay Disagrees With Oddsmakers

Combined AP & UPI

LOS ANGELES — University of Southern California coach John McKay disagrees with oddsmakers who have made the Trojans two touchdown favorites in their showdown with UCLA for the Rose Bowl bid.

"On comparison of the teams we've both played," McKay said yesterday, the 15-point odds for the game are out of line.

"What impresses me is UCLA's 56-14 victory over Michigan State. The Spartans not only beat Onio State but they played Notre Dame and Michigan very close games.

"Truthfully, we haven't played anyone as strong as Michigan State."

USC meets UCLA Saturday and the winner figures to be the Pacific-8 representative at Pasadena, New Year's Day.

The Trojans are 5-0-1 in the Pac-8 and 7-1-1 overall.

Baseball

SHIZUOKA, Japan — The Yomiuri Giants erupted for seven runs in the fifth inning today and beat the New York Mets 7-4 before 30,000 at Kusanagi Stadium to cap their 11-game series with six wins, three losses and two ties.

Yogi Berra's Mets, who arrived on Oct. 24, finished their 18-game goodwill series with a record of nine wins, seven losses and two ties. They are scheduled to depart by a chartered plane Sunday for New York.

Racing

DENVER — Sports Car Club of America has disbanded the Canadian-American Challenge Cup this year for lack of support from promoters, the club announced yesterday.

Basketball

PHOENIX — The Phoenix Suns have filed a protest with NBA commissioner Walter Kennedy over their 106-105 loss to the Golden State Warriors Sunday night.

Suns general manager Jerry Colangelo asked Kennedy to view films of the game and order that the last 16 seconds be replayed.

Colangelo claims that films show Golden State center George Johnson knocked the ball out of bounds under the Warriors' basket with 16 seconds remaining and Phoenix leading 105-104. Officials Earl Strom and Lenny Wirtz gave Golden State possession, and Derrek Dickey scored with eight seconds left to give the Warriors the victory.

NEW YORK — Gene Moore, a 6-foot-9 forward from St. Louis who bounced around the American Basketball Association for five seasons, was selected by Barcelona as the No. 1 pick in the European Professional Basketball League draft. Former Warrior Joe Ellis was picked by Belgium. The newly-formed eight-team EPBL, with teams in Spain, Switzerland, Germany, Great Britain, France, Belgium and Israel, plans to start a 42-game schedule Jan. 17.

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Triangles of World Team Tennis signed Australian Evonne Goolagong to a new two-year contract.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Juan Gisbert of Spain beat Armistead Neely of the United States 4-6, 7-6, 6-1 in the fifth round of the men's singles at the South African Open Tennis Championship.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina's Guillermo Vilas and Spain's Manuel Orantes scored a 5-7, 6-1, 6-2 doubles victory over Escribano and Miguel Carruthers, both of Argentina, in the $20,000 Argentine Open Tennis Tournament.

FINAL STATISTICS

Novato's Hoog Double Winner

Split end Steve Hoog of Novato won both the receiving and scoring titles, teammate Mike Moroski won the passing crown, and San Marin halfback Wayne Roche was the leading rusher in Marin County Athletic League football this season.

Unofficial statistics for the six-game season show Moroski and Hoog far and away the best passer and pass catcher in the league. Largely because of them, MCAL champion Novato led the league in offense with 274.6 yards per game.

Roche, who also won the rushing title last year, turned a close race into a rout in the final game with 162 yards in 20 carries against Terra Linda. He also scored a touchdown to finish behind Hoog in scoring.

Roche's teammate, fullback Bob Bennett, edged Kevin Murphy of Tamalpais for third in rushing, and Dick Labarthe of Terra Linda claimed fourth as the only other runner with over 300 yards.

Drake quarterback Terry Fahey and split end Gary Peak locked up second place in passing and receiving last Saturday against Tam. Fahey threw for three touchdowns and 127 yards, and Peak caught three passes, including a TD bomb as the Pirates won, 33-21.

Islanders Glad To Be Back Home

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

"It's very nice to go traveling," says the old song, but the New York Islanders, thank you, are just as glad to be home.

After a disastrous all-losing five-game road trip that extended their winless skein to seven National Hockey League games, the Islanders returned home last night and found the partisan crowd a refreshing change.

With Ed Westfall scoring a pair of goals and assisting on a third, the Islanders beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 4-3, giving Coach Al Arbour reason to be happy—although not yet convinced the worst is over.

Westfall got the Islanders out in front with the game's first goal and later put them ahead 2-1 with his second. After Bob Kelly tied it again for Pittsburgh at 8:19 of the second period, Clark Gillies put New York ahead to stay less than a minute later.

Canucks 6, Blues 3

Cal Dominates NorCal Awards

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California, which jumped from a 4-7 record in 1973 to a 7-2-1 mark with one game remaining this season, dominated the post-season collegiate football awards in Northern California announced yesterday.

The Golden Bears, who meet Stanford Saturday, were voted the outstanding and also the most improved university squad by Northern California writers.

Mike White, who was 7-15 after his first two seasons at Cal, earned Coach of the Year honors and quarterback Steve Bartkowski was named the Offensive Player of the Year.

San Jose State end Dave Wasick cut into the Bear monopoly by taking defensive honors for the season. Coach Jim Sochor and tight end Rick Fortner of 8-1 UC Davis and Santa Clara linebacker Pete Yorkoski were the college choices.

The writers also unanimously picked Cal to beat Stanford in the 77th Big Game. "It's my 20th straight Big Game and I think it will be one of the best because both teams are so similar," White said.

"I know Stanford's incentive is to have a winning season, while we're shooting for our best year since 1951," White added. "I imagine we will be favored, but it really doesn't matter in a rivalry like this."

Stanford Coach Jack Christiansen missed the weekly gathering because of a death in the family but assistant Dave Currey emphasized a winning season is the biggest goal of the 4-4-2 Cardinals

Bartkowski, a strong arm senior who holds Cal records for single-season passing (2,262 yards) and total offense (2,094), also was announced as a West selection for the annual Shrine game, Dec. 28.

He earned offensive honors over standout University of Pacific tailback Willard Harrell, whose 147 rushing yards in a 50-14 victory at Wyoming last Saturday placed him 9th on the all-time NCAA list with 3,324 yards.

Wasick, a 6-3, 230-pound senior, has been in on 120 tackles and has made four fumble recoveries for the Spartans, who take a 7-3-1 record into their final game at Southwestern Louisiana Friday night.

Bears Favored By Three Points

STATELINE, Nev (UPI) — University of California is a three-point pick to defeat Stanford in Saturday's Big Game at Berkeley, according to odds posted yesterday by Harrah's Tahoe racebook.

Southern California is favored by 15 to defeat UCLA and win both the Pac 8 title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Fun And Games In Supervisor Appointment

The brouhaha over appointment of a successor to Michael Wornum as Marin County's Third District supervisor has set up the possibility of an intriguing situation.

Let's suppose that Wornum persists in his intention not to take his seat in the state Assembly on Dec. 2.

Then let's suppose that Gov. Ronald Reagan, in accordance with an opinion by the legislative counsel with which the attorney general is reported to concur, declares the Assembly seat vacant and calls a special election.

And then let's suppose that William T. Bagley, the longtime holder of the seat, makes good his threat to run against Wornum in the special election.

WHEN YOU SET up that scenario, it's pretty easy to predict who'd win. Although he didn't win the state controller office, Bagley outpolled his opponent, Kenneth Cory, by 2-to-1 in Marin County: 48,760 to 24,338. At the same time, Wornum won Marin in his Assembly race by a little over 3,000 votes: 38,004 to 34,886 for his opponent, A. Alan Hill. And he got all of that margin, with a little to spare, in his Third Supervisorial District, where he polled 10,098 to Hill's 7,062. In the rest of Marin, Wornum trailed Hill.

And so, to continue the scenario, after Bagley was returned to the Assembly in the special election, Wornum could be appointed by then-Gov. Ednumd G. Brown Jr. to his old seat as Third District supervisor. And everything would be the same as if Wornum had never run for Assembly and Bagley had never tried for the state controller office.

Pretty silly, isn't it? But so is the whole affair.

IT ALL COMES about because, in amending the state consitution to create a two-year legislature, our lawmakers (and a majority of Californians who voted for the change) switched the start of new leigslators' terms from Jan. 2 to Dec. 2. The governor's term, however, does not expire until the new year starts; neither do county supervisor terms.

This means that, if Wornum takes office when he's supposed to, Governor Reagan will appoint someone to fill out his supervisorial term.

Wornum doesn't want that to happen. Wornum is a Democrat. He wants Jerry Brown to make the appointment.

That's why he's threatened to remain as supervisor until January, when Brown will be in office.

OF COURSE, Wornum claims this is because Reagan "has been rejected" by the people (overlooking the fact that Reagan didn't run). Therefore, according to Wornum's thesis, Brown is better able to name a supervisor who would, in his words, "not be harmful to what I conceive to be the best interests of the Third District."

Come off it, Mike! You've had your fun; now go to Sacramento on Dec. 2 and start working for us in the Assembly. That's what the voters elected you to do.

Unless, that is, you really don't want to be assemblyman and would prefer we keep Bill Bagley in that office. If that's how you feel — well, we'll go along with you, Mike. It seems like a swell idea.

"Well? Was I convincing, or not?"

Some Reasons Why Crime Continues To Increase In U.S.

WASHINGTON — The Gallup Poll is not the only way to measure public concern. Another good way is to examine the motion picture poll.

What films are audiences seeing in increasing numbers? The answer is: crime, crime and more crime. These days there are all kinds of movies about crime — good and bad, foolish and frivolous, dull and boisterous, criminals preying on citizens, cops preying on criminals and with the audiencies often cheering on the police.

You may have seen one or more of them: "Death Wish," "Law and Disorder," "The Taking of Pelham One Two Three," "The Super Cops" and so forth.

CRIME IS INCREASING. Movies about crime in theaters and on TV are increasing. In the movie theaters today Americans ware witnessing not only "entertainment," they are witnessing reality. And they are reflecting mounting public anxiety that nothing equal to the need is being done to arrest the constant increase of serious crime in our midst.

What most needs to be done? I give you the considered answers of one who speaks from experience, the director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Clarence M. Kelley. I can assure you that he is not one who wants to diminish constitutionally protected rights and due process under the law for the accused. His views deserve the responsive attention of every citizen who wants to see crime go down, not up.

QUESTION — What is the core of the problem; what is contributing substantially to the growth of crime?

DIRECTOR KELLEY — There is convincting evidence that as many as two-thirds of all offenses are committed by persons who have been arrested for and convicted of crimes previously.

Under current bail procedures, these experienced and often hardened criminals are frequently given the same considerationas first-time offenders. This means that a high-risk offender can be bonded and released a number of times while awaiting trial. Many of these offenders commit additional crimes. Criminal repeaters, charged with crimes of violence, are frequently permitted bail as quickly as youthful and novice offenders accused of petty larceny.

QUESTION — What other changes need to be made?

DIRECTOR KELLEY — There is a widespread tendency (by the courts) to pronounce concurrent sentences on offenders convicted of multiple crimes — two, three or more crimes for the price of one.

This tells us where citizen action needs to be directed.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Utility Of Constitutional Amendment Questioned

Proposition 11 changed a few masculine pronouns (like "he") in the State Constitution to other words which also apply to both sexes. It caused four additional pages to be placed in the California Voters Pamphlet. That pamphlet was sent to every registered voter in the state. I wonder bow many trees were used to make those pages and how much solid waste was created by them, merely to change a few words (without changing their meaning) in a document which only a very few people ever read. Surely our responsible women leaders can find better use for our valuable natural resources and for their valuable leadership talents.

Idea To Give More Meaning To Christmas

This Christmas will be different, and I believe better, for our family. We had an idea to make Christmas more meaningful this year, and told our friends that we wouldn't be exchanging gifts, we all have what we need already, if we think about it. We are going to spend the money usually spent on gifts and numerous trappings of a much exploited, commercialized Christmas in helping the people in the world who don't even have the necessities of life, and all the material "blessings" that we have in this country.

Money can be used wisely, beautifully and with meaning, and this is an opportunity to do so. We have decided to send as much as we could to our favorite "world helpers," as we call them, as an alternative to gift exchange. These helpers are CARE and Save the Children Federation, competent, honest and capable organizations.

We told our friends and they all readily agreed it was a wonderful idea, and that they would do so also, as an alternative to the traditional gift exchange habit so hard to change. A group of friends or members of a family could get together and each donate an amount to send to these organizations who help people build a better life for themselves today and a promising future tomorrow . . .

These ideas and my friends' responses to them have given me a very good feeling. We are getting closer to the real meaning of Christmas — love to all humankind. I feel that in giving and sharing in this way, it is possible to spread yourself around the world in peace and joy.

Jewish Group Disturbed By 'Influence' Remark

Throughout Nov. 13, the American Jewish Committee's Washington office was in close touch with the office of the secretary of defense and the White House to express the dismay of the Jewish community at the remarks of Gen. George C. Brown, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and calling for their total repudiation.

Although General Brown, himself, has now seen fit to repudiate some of his remarks, we are still deeply disturbed that he has not yet withdrawn his reckless and bigoted description of Jewish influence. This tired slogan, trotted out every now and then by professional hatemongers, has been discredited over and over again by thoughtful Americans who know the objective facts.

The American Jewish Committee cannot let this disgraceful incident end without expressing our shock that any person, let alone one in a position such as General Brown's, would in this day and age, resort to these most discredited ethnic and religious stereotypes.

In our view, this incident calls into the most serious question, General Brown's fitness for the high post he now fills.

Grant Clarifies Stand On Information Release

A story in your Nov. 16 edition on the Marin County Human Rights Commission stated that I made "an earlier request . . . that press inquiries be referred to and answered by the commission's executive committee."

This is not accurate. At a previous meeting I raised the question of propriety of commission staff (Bosco) and commission chairman (Gray) responding to the news media on behalf of the commission when a new development on a sensitive issue was to come before the commission, especially when the other commissioners were not aware of the new development and when a special meeting of the commission had been called to deal with the issue.

I asked that in the future only the chairman respond to inquiries and that he do so only when the commissioners had determined commission policy on a given issue or when two of the three members of the executive committee agree to public response. Adoption of such a procedure for public statements from the commission would avoid circumstances in which the public has to try to distinguish between Bosco and Gray's personal views and commission policy.

The motion I made to establish this policy was defeated by the other commissioners.

Policewoman And Jane Alpert Combine To Prove A Point

WASHINGTON — Things change while we look the other way. Two women made the point the day last week when a cold front whipped in from the west, making us unhardy pedestrians shiver and stamp waiting for the light to change.

One of the women was the police officer in the middle of the intersection, waving her arms in her heavy blue uniform coat, her cheeks in the wind almost bright as the Day-glo vest she wore for visibility.

The other was Jane Lauren Alpert, the Weatherwoman who came in from the cold.

WHAT THE POLICE officer was doing five years ago, I can only guess. She was too busy to be interviewed about her past. I estimate she was a high school junior then, in a public school in a modest neighborhood, and according to the odds a law-abiding daughter of an old-fashioned blue- or white-collar Democrat.

Jane Albert was two years out of Swarthmore. In many ways she was typical of the most militant student activists of that year — bright, well educated, never having experienced poverty, yet convinced that the law had to be broken and the status quo upset if justice were to be served.

By her own admission in court, Alpert in 1969 was involved in the Weatherman conspiracy to bomb a series of New York buildings. The Weatherman, you recall, was the most violently active splinter group of SDS (Students for a Democratic Society) during the antiwar, antisystem outbreaks of the late '60s.

Although its activity tapered off only slowly, the violent spirit of the Weatherman was broken in 1970 when three members were killed by an accidental blast as they prepared homemade bombs in the basement of a Greenwich Village townhouse.

Soon after, Alpert was a fugitive again, jumping bail after her conspiracy confession and conviction. She stayed out there somewhere until last week, when she turned herself in.

EARLIER, IN A STATEMENT issued from hiding, she had partly explained her disillusionment with the Weatherman by declaring the group "male supremacist." She said she had renounced leftist militancy and taken up feminine radicalism during her fugitive years.

Now she is out on bail again.

Alpert and the policewoman are connected by more than the fact that I noticed them the same cold day (the one Alpert described as the happiest of her life).

For the institution that Alpert and her comrades in arms once collectively called "pigs" is now not only welcoming but recruiting women into its ranks. And police forces across the country are getting response from more women than ever before because now women recruits can compete with men in common entrance examinations, thus advance past their previous top grade of sergeant.

But the institution that was a particularly dictatorial form of "Democratic Society," the Weatherman, stands accused by one of its previous inner circle as a sexist outfit dominated by men. Alpert did not use the phrase "male chauvinist pig" in her statement, since it was politely worded, but she might have.

SOME WILL MAINTAIN that, had it not been for the hell raised by the Weatherman and its allies in radicalism, including the radical feminists, women still would be discriminated against on police forces. Maybe.

Others will respond that police departments were independently en route to enlightenment and did not need that kind of shove.

And somewhere in between, other voices are saying that neither of those is quite accurate, that the protests were put down but changes were made, all within the system the protesters wanted to destroy. They call that democratic society, but they spell it with a little d and s.

SACRAMENTO SCENE

State Finally Cracking Down On Rent Subsidies

By EARL G. WATERS

At long last it appears that the state is about to apply sound business management principles to the residential property which it has been furnishing to employes over the years. So lackadaisical has been the handling of this property that no one knew how many residences the state owned or their value.

Spurred by the disclosure that State College Chancellor Glen S. Dumke was residing in a Bel Air Mansion valued at more than $350,000 while paying only about $130 a month rent, the State Board of Control ordered a study of state rentals. Now, after nearly two years of nagging its staff, a report has been submitted and the board has set Dec. 5 for a meeting to adopt new rental policies.

THE STUDY HAS REVEALED the state owns 1,170 houses, 100 apartments, and nearly 2000 other residential units, including dormitories. The market value of the homes alone comes close to $20 million. While few are in the class of that occupied by Dumke, quite a number are valued at far more than the homes of most citizens. But through the years, favored employes have been enjoying the use of these homes at rentals so low as to be ridiculous.

The report sets forth the axiom that "it is incumbent upon the state to provide for a reasonable return on its capital investment". It also declares "the State Personnel Board has the sole responsibility for establishing compensation for . . . employees" and that "state housing is not to be used as a direct subsidy or salary substitute".

It recommends that rentals be charged at one per cent of the market value of the property "in keeping with the average practices in the private sector". This, it states, will "fulfill the state's obligation to the taxpayers as well as establish fair and equitable rental rates for all state employes".

The report takes cognizance of the fact that some employees are justifiably required to live in state-furnished housing. This includes such persons as the fire lookout on the mountain top and certain highway snow removal crews in remote areas. For these, adjustments will be allowed to reduce the rents to minimal amounts.

But, for the most part, the report favors a strict standard be applied to any "requirement" that an employee live in state housing and recommends that as much of the state owned housing as possible be disposed of.

This is a recognition that much of the state housing came into existence in another era, when institutions and facilities were well away from urban areas and housing was not conveniently available in the private sector.

IN ADDITION to Dumke, four of the 19 state college presidents have been furnished homes ranging in value from $75,000 to $150,000 or more. A similar situation has existed at the campuses of University of California, where chancellors have been living in homes rent-free, with the state furnishing all utilities, maintenance and servants. The legislature this year elminated from the budget all funds for this purpose and denied any allowances for the state colleges as well. This action has evidently been taken as a confirmation of the objectives of the Board of Control in establishing realistic rents for all employes.

As the board has pointed out, the present system has created gross inequities among employes, some having practically rent-free houses while others, doing the same work, must provide for themselves.

Only Congress Has The Power To Curb Cancer Of Bureaucracy

(Reprinted from Tulsa Tribune)

One of America's favorite pastimes is to rail at government bureaucracy, but the growth in Civil Service employment indicates that the fun is becoming not only too expensive but also dangerous.

In a special study, U.S. News and World Report outlines the continuing trend toward ever-fattening government payrolls and ever-diminishing quality service. One worker in six occupies a government job, and many who have studied the pattern closely are saying the real rulers of the country may be the 14.5 million bureaucrats who are on the public payrolls.

Salaries and benefits for federal employes alone add up to more than $41 billion a year. State and local costs are more than $100 billion annually.

THE COSTS OF SUPPORTING such an industry, one which doesn't have to show a profit, are staggering, but even more frightening is the fact that nobody knows how to control it.

Reform? Adm. Hyman Rickover, who made legions of enemies with his acerbic criticisms of waste in the Defense Department, said that would be "like asking a whale to fly."

"Only Congress can reduce the system's size and bring some order out of chaos," he told a congressional committee.

One bureaucrat offered this advice: "If you want to reduce the size of the bureaucracy, the thing to do is cut back the number of government programs. The time has come to call a moratorium on the creation of public agencies."

THE TIME INDEED has come, but not simply for economic reasons. As U.S. News and World Report noted, about 1.7 million federal workers now belong to unions, and, while strikes have been few, the potential, added to the reality of public employee strikes at state and municipal levels, suggests the kind of bureaucratic power that goes far beyond the capacity to frustrate the public.

The monster should be harnessed before it realizes its own strength. What this country needs is some professional dragon slayers in Congress.

By THERON NEWELL

Consumers Not Only Ones Who Scrimp To Meet Inflation

Inflation and shortages make almost daily headlines. The government and individuals are having a heyday telling the American public how to save energy and food.

Many Americans follow the instructions and do not drive so far or fast, cut down on the use of gas and electricity, and try to reduce the amount of food wasted.

One thing which many American consumers may not have noticed is that the food processers have their own ways of conserving.

For many years we have eaten one brand of bread consistently. So, we knew what to expect, and the bread continued to be the same quality.

However, for the past two or three months, the same brand of bread has slipped considerably in quality. At first we thought that it might be because it had been on the grocer's shelves too long. Changing stores and making sure that it was fresh convinced us that it was the baker who had cut down on the quality of the bread.

We found the same true of a national brand of soda crackers. They not only were of poorer quality, but were much thinner. Again, it had to be the manufacturer's answer to high costs of material and labor.

It used to be that can sizes were standard sizes. A person could compare prices of products, can by can. But not any more. A close examination of some cans shows that their size has been slightly altered so that the cans now hold an ounce or two less than the same brand a year ago.

The consumer can't win for losing.

THE CITY OF NOVATO'S Public Works Department has a long history of getting caught with unfinished projects during the winter rains.

Rowland Boulevard was impassable for one whole winter. Portions of Center Road were impassable for more than one winter as the city struggled to complete projects.

It was 10 years ago that the route of the freeway bypass was selected. It was seven years ago that the precise plans were far enough along so that the city knew what street work would be required of it when the bypass opened. It was three years ago that the work on the bypass started.

The city council budgeted money for the improvement of the Rowland and South Novato Boulevard intersection. The intersection is low and holds a pond of water at every rain. It even holds water when nearby residents let their sprinklers run onto the sidewalk and drain into the street.

Plans call for elevating the intersection and adding traffic lights.

The area has had months of dry weather when street work could be accomplished without any fear of rain.

Now the rains have started, so the city started tearing up the intersection to work on it.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Who Says Fishing Flights Not Strategic Operations?

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Anyone exposed to the daily outpourings of congressmen quickly becomes dismayed over how myopic they are.

At hand is a classic illustration — a press release from Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., accusing the Air Force of maintaining five aircraft in Labrador for fishing trips.

Noting that the planes, which cost $100,000 a year to operate, are carried in the budget under "Strategic Offensive Operations," Aspin aspersively comments:

"There is no way these planes could be used in strategic operations. They are too old, too small and not even bombers."

REALLY NOW! It's incredible how often our lawgivers miss the true significance of matters that pop up under their very noses.

To assume that frequent flights to Labrador fishing resorts have no strategic implications is terribly dimsighted.

Apparently Aspin has not seen the movie "The Day of the Dolphin."

Although its account of a military plot to train dolphins to blow up ships is fictitious, the movie is by no means entirely without basis in fact.

It is known that the U.S. Navy has indeed experimented with the use of dolphins to carry out certain underwater tasks.

And anyone who knows anything at all about interservice rivalry knows the Air Force doesn't stand around and let the Navy get sole credit for some new breakthrough.

ANY TIME THE NAVY has a fish-training program in the works, you can bet the Air Force is conducting its own piscatorial project.

Some clue as to what may be afoot in Labrador may be found by turning to any good encyclopedia and looking up "Flying Fish."

There you will learn that certain types of finny creatures can aviate through the troposphere for distances up to1,000 feet.

Which is more than enough for the Air Force to claim jurisdiction.

Now suppose a school of flying fish was outfitted with some type of high explosive. And suppose they were trained to launch themselves at a given target at a given signal.

No enemy city or installation within 1,000 feet of the coastline would be safe.

Since nothing has leaked, the project must be strictly hush-hush. But if congressmen were even halfway alert to what's going on around them, they could figure these things out for themselves.

Cranston Flays Ford Over Veto

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., said yesterday President Ford's veto of freedom of information legislation was "further evidence" the President had not learned "the basic lessons of Watergate."

The California Democrat said Ford had done the "unpardonable" in pardoning former President Nixon before the legal process had run its full course.

Now, he said, the veto of amendments to the Freedom of Information Act was "further evidence that he (Ford) hasn't grasped still another lesson of Watergate — the dangers of undue secrecy in government."

Cranston's criticism of Ford came in remarks prepared for delivery in the Senate, where he is helping organize an effort to override the veto.

Cranston, a former newsman, said Ford's veto of the bill "threatens to perpetuate the Nixon style of letting government bureaucrats manipulate the public by deceiving the press."

He said the vetoed legislation was intended to broaden public access to government documents and to provide for judicial review of disputes over what information should be made public.

The Senate is expected to vote tomorrow or Friday on the move to override.

Gardeners Lose $7 Tax Break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The gardeners of America lost a $7 a year tax break yesterday when Rep. James A. Burke's proposal to extend the 7 per cent investment tax credit to the first $100 of home garden tools was dropped by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The Massachusetts Democrat, who is also pushing legislation to give free seeds to all Americans, convinced the committee months ago to include the tax credit in its pending tax reform bill, but it was dropped when the bill was scaled down to bare bones to help its chances of passage.

Burke, his cause lost, agreed to drop the amendment after telling his laughing colleagues, "I think we ought to get it in for spring planting."

Big Buildings Face First Look By Energy Board

WASHINGTON (UPI) — If you operate the biggest building in town, the Federal Energy Administration will be calling on you.

Under a new voluntary program announced this week by the FEA, operators of commercial, public and industrial buildings are being asked to cut down their energy use for lighting, heating, air-conditioning and operating by 25 per cent in 1975.

The FEA has already started distributing kits of guidelines and suggestions, and the agency plans to send out a "sales force" of regional FEA workers to sell the idea to the businessmen.

The "salesmen" will call on the biggest buildings in their areas first, Roger W. Sant, assistant administrator of the FEA said.

The saving goal is the same as was set last winter during the crisis of the Arab oil embargo and general shortages of energy. But, Sant said, "The message did not get across" last year for some reason.

This time, he said, if it does not get across, the federal government may "add teeth" to the standards such as making them a requirement for getting a federal contract.

The guidelines call for buildings to be heated only to 65-68 degrees, air-cooled down to only 78-80 degrees, and lighted to a specific intensity.

If everybody does what is requested the saving could be the equivalent of 300,000 barrels of oil a day, Sant said.

Wine And Dice

180 MILES PER GALLON

Moped — A Hybred Motor Scooter

By CHRISTINE TERP
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Your car guzzles gas, but you aren't keen on bicycling? Try a moped.

That's mo-ped, short for motor-pedal. It looks as odd as it name sounds: either a scrawny motor scooter or a "clunky" bicycle.

Fat, 17-inch wheels and high handlebars give the moped a rather graceless look; the motor, tucked beneath the center frame, makes the whole thing appear a trifle ridiculous. The presence of pedals and chain hardly adds dignity.

And yet . . . because the moped is close to the ground, it is fairly easy to control and balance, more so than either a bike or motor scooter. Throttle and brake levers are right on the handle bars. And most mopeds are automatic — no clutch, no gearshift.

How do they work? Push the start button, pedal quickly to get going, and the motor propels you along at a top speed of 30 miles an hour.

Until you start to climb a hill, that is. The 1½-horsepower engine needs help occasionally on steep grades, some supplementary quick spins to help it over the top.

Mileage is so good (experienced riders claim up to 180 miles per gallon) that the gas tanks holds only one gallon.

European shoppers and workers have relied on mopeds for years. Tourists in Bermuda zip around on them. And many people — including manufacturers and dealers — expect a whole new market to open up in the United States in a few months.

Spurred by would-be riders and the fuel shortage, the U.S. Department of Transportation is on the verge of relaxing lighting regulations for the small vehicles. This will make it easier for European manufacturers to export mopeds to the U.S.

While the present regulations do not prohibit mopeds from traveling American streets, the lighting restrictions are simply too stringent for the European machines. Until now, mopeds have been viewed as being the same thing as motorcycles, despite their weak engines.

Only mopeds that go no faster than 30 miles per hour will come under the new guidelines.

Motorcycle shops and automobile dealerships are starting to stock mopeds, anticipating a surge of interest. "We're getting ready for it," says Armen Khandjian, a bicycle dealer in Lowell, Mass.

No mopeds are made in the U.S. now, so the imports will boast such names as Batavus, Malguit, and Piaggio. Peugeot also makes a few models.

"Who can go over 30 anyway in the city?" pointed out one "mopedler."

Athletes Said Denied Rights

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — A University of Oklahoma student court has ruled that Sooner athletes are being denied basic student rights such as privacy, fair disciplinary procedures and the right to have food, drink, beer and television in their rooms.

The court yesterday said in a 13-page opinion that student rights are "absolute and may not be denied for any reason."

The opinion upheld a petition filed against the athletic department by OU Student Association President Cathy Kidd and two student athletes.

The petition charged the department denied rights of privacy, fair disciplinary proceedings and possession of food and other items in rooms and that it abridged female visitation hours and denied meals as a means of punishment.

However, the court gave no instruction to the athletic department.

A Second Try At Confirming Judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has sent the nomination of former Connecticut Gov. Thomas J. Meskill to be a federal appeals court judge to the current lame-duck session of Congress for a second try at confirmation.

The Senate failed to approve Meskill's nomination to the second judicial circuit during the regular term and Ford Monday sent it to Capitol Hill for a second time.

Navy Recruiting Drive Lags Again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For the fifth month in a row the Navy has failed to meet its recruiting goals, highlighting the increasing difficulties the sea service is havingin making the all-volunteer idea work.

Pentagon statistics released yesterday showed the Navy reached 97 per cent of its recruiting goals last month. In the preceeding four months the Navy ranged from 86 per cent to 92 per cent of its goals.

During the same five-month period the Air Force has always reached or even exceeded its goals. The Army and Marine Corps have each missed their goals by three percentage points in one month but are still ahead based other months where they far exceeded their goals.

Although much attention has been focused on the Army's recruiting problems a it switched to the all-volunteer force, Pentagon officials say they expect the Navy to face greater difficulties over the next few years.

The Army's needs for recruits will actually decline over the next few years, but in every year through 1980 the Navy's needs are greater than the previous year.

Medical Case Could Cost UC $4 Million

TORRANCE (UPI) — A 52-year-old woman who lapsed into a coma two years ago after surgery will have all her expenses paid to a possible total of approximately $4 million, court records showed yesterday.

University of California regents agreed to pay June Walker's costs at a San Gabriel convalescent home.

Her expenses range from $334 to $380 a day and the $4 million figure is based on life expectancy of 23 years.

A lawsuit brought on behalf of the patient charged that on May 10, 1972 she stopped breathing during a heart attack while undergoing minor surgery for removal of a cyst at UCLA Medical Center.

Surgeons were accused of improperly placing the 5-foot tall 267-pound woman prone on the operating table, oversedating her and performing surgery without reviewing her medical history.

She went into a coma from which she has never emerged, testimony showed, and brain damage was indicated.

This is the 100th anniversary of osteopathic medicine. Dr. Andrew Taylor Still first presented osteopathic medicine's principles in Baldwin, Kan., in 1874.

Pumpkin Soup Rare Treat At The Soupcon Restaurant

By BETTY FROST

Is the handsome, plentiful pumpkin only good for pie, pudding and other sweets?

Jackie Cook, proprietor of Soupcon in Sausalito says a resounding "no," and goes on to prove it with the delectable "Pumpkin Soup Soupcon," served at the restaurant.

Mrs. Cook and her son, Ford Cook, opened the Soupcon four years ago. Ford has now gone on to open his own establishment, Ford's Cafe, in Sonoma. In the intimate eating place where homemade soups are featured, remarks about "too many Cooks spoiling the broth" are not appreciated.

Mrs. Cook, a former director of the Sausalito Nursery School, has been a resident of Sausalito for 24 years. When they opened the all-Sausalito operation, the Cooks hired Peter Wellington, Sam Cousins, Bennet King and Mimi Katz, whose friendship with Ford dated back to Sausalito Nursery School. Another local youngster who has a major role is Tori Minton, 17 who bakes all the fresh made cakes and pies for Soupcon.

PUMPKIN SOUP SOUPCON

- 4 cups fresh diced pumpkin or
- 2 cups canned pumpkin
- 1 cup canned yams
- 2 cups water
- 2 cups chicken stock
- 2 cups beer
- 2 cups heavy cream
- 1 cup finely diced tomatoes
- ½ cup diced green pepper
- ½ cup diced onion
- ¼ cup butter
- Dash (about ⅛ teaspoon) each of caraway seed, mace, cinnamon, pepper and nutmeg
- Few grains of cloves

If fresh pumpkin is used, it should be cooked until the consistency of mashed potatoes.

Put all ingredients except cream in a deep pot. Bring to a boil, then simmer for about 30 minutes or until all vegetables are soft.

Blend in cream.

Makes six to eight servings.

Advance Preparation Can Aid The Hostess

Hostesses who plan their time and menus carefully can enjoy holiday entertaining as much as their guests. Preparations can begin two to four weeks in advance — make a guest list, decide upon table settings and compile a shopping list estimating the party budget.

Most important, select hors d'oeuvres carefully, making sure that the amount will coincide with the number of guests. The following will serve a party of 12. The meatballs can be made two weeks in advance and the pate can be made the day before, leaving the cook time enough to prepare a delicious French pastry such as Mocha Cream Puffs.

MANHATTAN MEAT BALLS

(Can be made from two to four weeks ahead)

- 1 lb. ground pork
- 1 lb. ground veal
- 2 cups soft bread crumbs
- 2 eggs
- ½ cup chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 2 tablespoons margarine
- 1 10-oz. jar apricot preserves
- ½ cup barbecue sauce

Combine meat, bread crumbs, eggs, onion and seasonings; mix lightly. Heat oven to 350°. Shape into 1½ inch meatballs. Brown in margarine; drain. Place in 2-quart casserole. Combine preserves and barbecue sauce; pour over meatballs. Bake at 350°, 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Approximately 5 dozen meatballs.

To make ahead: Prepare recipe as directed, except for baking. Freeze casserole securely in moisture-vaporproof wrap. When ready to serve, place in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours. Bake uncovered at 350°, 1 hour; stirring occasionally.

FROSTED CHICKEN LIVER PATE

- 2 cups hot water
- 1½ lbs. chicken livers
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon pepper
- 1½ teaspoons prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons grated onion
- 2 tablespoons brandy
- ½ cup margarine

Frosting

- 1 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese
- 2 teaspoons milk
- Party rye bread slices

Bring water to a boil; add chicken livers. Cover; cook over medium heat 10-12 minutes or until tender. Drain. Chop chicken livers. Combine liver, seasonings, mustard, Worcestershire, onion, brandy and margarine; beat with electric mixer until smooth and well blended. Chill. Shape into ball.

For frosting: combine softened cream cheese and milk; mix until well blended. Spread over pate. Garnish with sieved egg yolk and lemon leaves, as desired. Serve with party rye bread. Approximately 2¼ cups.

To make ahead: Prepare and shape pate mixture one day in advance. Chill. Frost and garnish several hours before serving. Cover; chill.

MOCHA CREAM PUFFS

- 1 cup water
- ½ cup (1 stick) margarine
- 1 cup unsifted flour
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 4 eggs
- 4 teaspoons instant coffee
- 2 cups heavy cream
- ½ cup confectioners' sugar

Cranberries Expected To Be At Peak Through November

Cooks with one eye out for the best produce buys of the season and the other out for impressive recipes with which to prepare them will delight in the virtues of fresh cranberries.

The cranberry crop is in its peak through November with this season's production forecasted as the second largest in three years. Prices should stay relatively stable.

Look ahead to Thanksgiving and Christmas with these recipes for buffet salad, steamed pudding made with molasses and cranberry fruit bread.

TRI-LAYER PEAR SALAD

- 1 (16 oz.) can pear halves
- 1¾ cups pear syrup plus water
- 1 (3 oz.) package orange-flavored gelatin
- 1 (8 oz.) package cream cheese, softened
- 2 tablespoons chopped pecans
- 1 envelope unflavored gelatin
- 1 (16 oz.) can whole cranberry sauce
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ¼ cup chopped celery
- Crisp salad greens

Drain pear halves, reserving syrup. Cut four pear halves in half, lengthwise. Chop remaining pear halves. Measure pear syrup, adding water to make 1¾ cups. Dissolve orange-flavored gelatin in one cup boiling pear syrup mixture. Stir in remaining ¾ cup pear syrup and water. Chill until slightly thickened. Arrange pear quarters in bottom of six cup mold. Pour in all but three tablespoons orange gelatin. Chill until almost firm. Blend reserved three tablespoons gelatin with cream cheese. Stir in pecans. Spoon over pear gelatin layer. Chill. Meanwhile, soften unflavored gelatin in cranberry sauce. Add sugar and heat, stirring until dissolved. Chill until syrupy. Fold in celery and diced pears. Pour over cheese layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp salad greens. Makes eight to 10 servings.

CRANBERRY MOLASSES STEAMED PUDDING

(Makes one 1½-quart mold)

- 3½ cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 3 cups fresh cranberries, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 2 teaspoons nutmeg
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1 cup light molasses
- ⅔ cup hot water
- 4 teaspoons baking soda

Combine all ingredients except hot water and baking soda in a bowl. Mix hot water and baking soda. Add mixture to bowl and beat until well blended. Spoon mixture into a heavily greased 1½-quart mold. Cover tightly with a piece of greased foil. Bake in a preheated moderaty oven (350°F.) for 1½ hours. Uncover and bake another 10 minutes. Unmold and serve warm with frosted cranberries and orange hard sauce or ice cream. Wrap leftover pudding in foil and chill until ready to serve. To reheat place foil wrapped pudding into a preheated moderate oven (350°F.) for 30 minutes or until heated through.

PEAR-CRANBERRY SALAD — Cranberries can be used in a number of recipes including this pear salad. Pears and orange gelatin combine for the first layer, in the center is a layer of cream cheese and pecans and the bottom molds cranberry sauce with celery and diced pears.

Peach Recipe

Drain canned cling peach slices and place cut side up in shallow baking dish. Broil about three inches from heat about 10 minutes. Meanwhile, blend one-fourth cup parmesan cheese, one-half cup mayonnaise and and one tablespoon chopped canned green chili or one-half teaspoon chili powder. Serve over peaches.

Turkey Appears Good Buy For Thanksgiving

By JOAN LISETOR

It looks as if the traditional Thanksgiving turkey will be a good buy this year, and Peggy Hopkins, home economist for the North Bay Division, Pacific Gas and Electric Co., has some tips for stretching the holiday food dollar even farther.

Frozen turkeys usually are less expensive than fresh, she said, but if you are planning a frozen turkey buy it far enough in advance to thaw it property.

The best buy, according to Mrs. Hopkins, is a 20 to 24 pound turkey because it offers more servings per pound than smaller ones. Buy it well in advance, she said, because it takes three to four days in the refrigerator to thaw, 15 to 20 hours at room temperature and eight to 12 hours under water.

Mrs. Hopkins suggested freezing left over turkey, sliced in family sized servings for future dinners. Diced pieces can be frozen and used later for salads, sandwiches or creamed dishes, she said.

"If you can't afford a whole turkey, buy turkey parts," she said, "or substitute ground turkey. It can be made into patties or a loaf or meat balls using your favorite ground beef recipes."

PLAN YOUR menus so you will have "planned overs" instead of left overs, she said.

Holiday party givers will save time and energy having parties two nights in a row, Mrs. Hopkins said.

"Your house is already clean for the second party," she said, "and when you cook for the first, double the recipes. That doesn't double the time it takes or the cost."

A freezer also makes entertaining easier. Time consuming foods, such as tea sandwiches, canapes, dips and cooked appetizers can be made ahead when you have leisure time, as can baked items.

With rising milk prices, cooks should be aware of the versatility of less expensive instant non fat dry milk and evaporated milk, Mrs. Hopkins said. Evaporated milk can be whipped if chilled throughly and folded into gelatins or fruits, although she does not advise using it as a topping.

Mrs. Hopkins also suggested economizing by purchasing large pieces of meat, such as a full cut shank half of ham, and having a butcher cut it into portions. The shank end cut off can be used in boiled dinners. The center part can be cut in half and the piece with the bone baked. The remaining piece will slice easily with a sharp knife and thick slices can be fried or broiled. Thinner slices can be cut from the smaller end and used to make such dishes as scalloped ham and potatoes.

MEAT CUTTING can also stretch thick round bone pot roasts, port shoulders, full cut legs of lamb, rib cuts of a pork loin or rib roasts.

Whole chickens usually are less than cut up pieces, and unpopular pieces, such as necks and backs can be used for soup, said Mrs. Hopkins.

To economize on lunch meats, Mrs. Hopkins suggested, make your own. Leftover pieces of meat loaf, ham, turkey or tongue make delicious sandwiches, she said.

"Compare their cost per pound with packaged lunch meats, and you will probably see a 50 per cent savings," she said.

Variety meats, fish and some vegetables are some less expensive sources or protein often forgotten, she said.

When you shop can also be a factor in saving money, she said.

"Make a list, stick to it and never shop when you are hungry," she said.

ALSO SHOP when you have time to compare prices, she suggested.

If you have saved money on food, don't waste it on energy, she said. There is no need to preheat an oven, Mrs. Hopkins said, and remember how much energy is wasted by running a dishwasher that is not full or leaving the refrigerator door open.

Cheese And Mushrooms Add Zest

Cheese and mushrooms combine to create a handsome dinner alternative. Both ingredients are as nutritional as they are delectable. Serve with an appetizing tossed salad for lunch or dinner or from the buffet table at holiday get-togethers.

LIEDERKRANZ-MUSHROOM PIE

1 (11-oz.) pkg. pie crust mix
3 tbsps butter or margarine
1 cup thinly sliced onion
1 lb. fresh mushrooms, sliced or 4 (2½-oz.) jars sliced mushrooms drained & rinsed
1 tbsp lemon juice
½ tsp Worcestershire sauce
¼ to ½ tsp salt
Dash pepper
½ lb. hot Italian sausage, browned and drained
1 (4-oz.) pgk. Liederkranz Soft Ripened Cheese, sliced
2 tbsps all-purpose flour
1 whole egg, beaten
1 egg yolk
1 tbsp water

Prepare pie crust as package directs for two-crust pie. Roll out half of the pastry ⅛-inch thick. Trim pastry ½-inch beyond edge of pie pan. Roll out remaining pastry and cut into strips ½-inch wide and 12-inches long; set aside. In large skillet, over medium heat, melt butter; add onion. Cook and stir two minutes. Add mushrooms, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper. Cook 5 minutes; stir occasionally. Remove from heat; drain. In large bowl, combine sausage, mushroom mixture, cheese, flour and the whole egg. Mix lightly. Pour into pie shell. Lay pastry strips on pie at one-inch intervals in lattice fashion; trim lattice strips even with outer rim of pie plate. Fold lower crust over strips. Seal; crimp edge. Beat egg yolk and water together. Brush on strips and edge of pastry. Bake at 375° for 35 to 40 minutes. Serve hot. Makes six to eight servings.

Skim Milk, Bananas Diet Scored

(Eleventh in a series of 12 articles on dieting compiled by the Dairy Council of California from research by the California Dietetic Association.)

The skim milk and bananas quick weight loss diet proposed by Dr. Irwin Stillman is another of his "bizarre combinations," say professional dietitians — they reject it as unhealthy.

Dietitians of the California Dietetic Association in the pamphlet "A Dozen Diets For Better Or For Worse" do not recommend the diet because of obvious "nutrient inadequacies."

Dr. Stillman, compiler of many diets (including Dr. Stillman's Quick Weight Loss Beauty Diet and the Three Week-555 Diet) which appeal to those looking for a guaranteed method to take pounds off fast, promises a half-pound off a day using his banana and skim milk diet.

The diet allows no food except four bananas and five glasses of skim milk daily.

According to dietitians, the diet is not only boring but unhealthy.

"When only two foods are consumed the diet will be deficient in many nutrients," the pamphlet says. "This diet provides extremely inadequate supplies of vitamin A (27 per cent of need), niacin (38 per cent), and iron (22 per cent)."

And because the diet is low in calories with only 47 per cent of the daily need, Sillman's claim of quick weight loss may be met, but few people could continue this monotonous intake of foods, the pamphlet says.

The warning to dieters continues:

"Since sound eating habits are not practiced on this diet, it is likely that all of the weight loss will be regained when the user returns to his usual dietary pattern."

Few grains of salt

Heat water and margarine in a saucepan until the water is boiling and margarine has melted. Lower heat and add flour and salt all at once. Beat vigorously until mixture leaves the sides of the pan. Remove from heat. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Continue beating until mixture is smooth.

Drop mixture on a lightly greased baking sheet to form 12 puffs, dividing the mixture evenly.

Bake at 400° F. for about 45 minutes, or until done. Remove from baking sheet and cool on wire racks.

Dissolve instant coffee in ¼ cup cream. In small deep bowl, beat remaining cream, sugar, salt and coffee mixture until stiff peaks form.

When puffs are cool, cut off tops; scoop out soft dough. To serve, fill with mocha whipped cream; replace tops. Keep puffs refrigerated until serving time. Makes 12 servings.

Spicy Variety

An imaginative cook can easily create 365 different meat loaves a year by varying the spicing, the kinds of meat used, the fillers and the toppings. And, of course, there, are such extras as hard-cooked eggs, mushroom caps, whole peanuts, capers, olive slices and what-have-you which can be spaced throughout the loaves.

Hearty Omelet

To make a supper omelet a hearty offering, serve it with a cheese sauce to which a little diced cooked ham is added.

SAN RAFAEL SHOWCASE

A Comeback For Vaudeville

By JOAN LISETOR

Vaudeville is alive and well in San Rafael.

With a blend of nostalgic and contemporary acts the Vaudeville Show Case is being presented each Saturday night at 8 p.m. at the Belrose Studio Theater in San Rafael.

Coproducer, director and star of the show is Patti Newman of San Rafael, who has been involved in show business since she took a spill on stage in a dance recital and got her first laugh at the age of 5.

She, her husband, Al, and Margie Belrose put out a call for auditions in September and "talent just kept coming out of the woodwork."

THE SHOW OPENED to a full house on Oct. 12 and has continued to play to packed houses.

"Audiences have been so enthusiastic. We make them feel a part of the show. I like to sing to the little boys and the old men and do impromptu things with the audience," Mrs. Newman said.

Mrs. Newman did a children's show for the San Rafael Centennial and appeared in the "Jubilee." She saw the enthusiasm for live theater in Marin through these productions and from that the idea for the vaudeville show grew.

AUDITIONS ARE held every Friday night at the theater and performers have come from as far as Walnut Creek, San Leandro and San Francisco.

A group of young singers from San Francisco, "Reality in Motion," has been a hit of the show, and Mrs. Newman believes they are typical of young performers who need a showcase for their talents. They can also benefit from working with old timers like Yank Levine and Bob Mahoney, who years ago played the Borscht Circuit, and have revived their act.

"There is a family feeling among the performers, and they enjoy themselves as much as the audience. All of the performers help clean up after the shows and the mime sells the beverages," said Mrs. Newman, who is not only the star of the show, but also makes the popcorn.

GUEST CELEBRITIES, like Terry McGovern, who will do an act this Saturday, pop in from time to time, and Bill Dana is among the comedians who have asked if they could try out new acts at the vaudeville shows.

New talent is added every week, and the old talent comes up with new material.

"It's fun, it's camp, and I like to see people enjoy themselves," Mrs. Newman said.

"Who is not pressed for money these days? This is a place families can afford."

This week for $2 you can see a mimic do the old time radio voices, an 8-year-old belly dancer, singers, dancers and a whole lot of enthusiasm.

(Photos by Judi Colby)

Reunions Slated During Big Game

The Big Game Saturday between Stanford and California State University, Berkeley will also be a time for reminiscing between the alumni from 15 Cal graduating classes.

Reunion committees from the classes of '06, '16, '17, '18, '21, '24, '28, '29, '30, '30, '34, '39, '40, '54, '59 and '64 have made plans for former schoolmates that range from dinner dances to "tailgate" parties. The Chinese Chapter of the California Alumni Association is also sponsoring a dinner dance.

Thos planning to attend should call the California Alumni Association in Berkeley for details on "how and where."

New Fashions To Cost More

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fashion is a soft touch for spring. The only harsh news is in price increases on women's apparel.

With few exceptions, what the multibillion dollar New York garment industry has turned out for the new season couldn't be prettier, especially in fabric and color. No constructed lines with their constrictions. Even those women with a bulge here and there get a break in the overall trend, to big, loose shapes. Daytime hemlines are from below the knee to midcalf.

And if the legs aren't exactly Dietrich's, put them in pants. For the pants look goes on, an integral part of the American woman's wardrobe for both springtime days and evenings.

The break, however, grinds to a halt when the industry talks about costs. They're up, like just about everything else in our economy.

Industry sources predict that spring 1975 clothes will be 5 to 6 per cent higher than the fall 1974 clothes — and those in turn were up 5 to 6 per cent from 1973.

One industry source who didn't want his name used explained why. "Cost to manufacture has gone up. There was the 11 per cent wage increase of the union International Ladies Garment Workers Union in June. The cost of materials, mill operations and just the pure overhead of the business are up — salaries, salesmen's travels and entertaining buyers, everything . . ."

And with the big, loose shapes, more fabric and workmanship are involved.

In turn, several leading designers are working to hold the price line. Clovis Ruffin, for instance, said he will keep his sportswear in the $25 and up retail bracket and nothing higher than $100 in his dress collection.

In turn, Pauline Trigere, esteemed for her quality of design, fabrics and workmanship, talked about prices as "sad, but I might as well tell you now." This comment came as a model displayed a late day coat and dress, a combination of navy and white striped coat with chiffon print dress, quoted at $1,000 retail.

What women will wear for spring, no matter what the price, was previewed all this week by members of the American Designers' Group, in its semi-annual "National Press Week" for visiting reporters from all news media.

The silhouette is spacious. Some designers call it the chemise, the unbelted shape that came back with a big push last season from the Paris designer Yves St. Laurent.

Or call it the tent, for in some collections there's enough yardage to pitch one. One of Geoffrey Beene's long evening dresses used 13 yards of shocking pink, green and black taffeta for the skirt alone.

Looseness means not only greater ease to shapes but different ways of handling fabrics. One of the favorites in almost every collection — the skirt cut into four parts, with seams center front and back. Or skirts are gathered from the waist. Or, either the skirt or the whole garment is one series of tiers, each graduated in size to the hemline.

Watch for fullness in gathered sleeves, loose kimono sleeves, unbelted shirtail pullovers, some elongated into formals, drawstring necklines, dropped shoulders, casual, open-throated tops.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Participant In Robbery Says He's Really Learned A Lesson

DEAR HELEN:

I am a stupid and foolish man, and I want to right a wrong, but how?

Before I cut loose I was very church-going, but then I decided to live. One night I was out drinking with a friend. We got smashed and he asked me how I'd like to pull off a robbery. I thought he was kidding. We laughed and had a couple more. Then we went to his house, got his shotgun and took off, still laughing.

We went to a store, and I still thought it was a joke. But he handed me the gun, and said, "Let's go!"

We got $300. And, God forgive me, Helen, I was ready to shoot a man!

I'd give a thousand if I could undo that night. But don't ask me to turn myself in, Helen. They'd get my friend's name and I can't squeal on him.

I sent the $150 (my half) back to the store next morning and I'll pay back the rest out of my next two months' paychecks. Anonymously, of course.

And I haven't touched a drop of liquor since. Also I'm going to church again. Is that enough, or must I pay in full by going to jail? Believe me, I've learned a bigger lesson than if I spent five years locked up.

Please destroy this letter after printing it and give me reassurance if you can. — SORRY

DEAR SORRY:

My reassurance won't help if the theft is traced to you. But the fact that you are repaying the money and obviously aren't a repeater would get you off with a light sentence.

Personally, I think you've paid for your crime, and I think the storekeeper will agree.

(Am not so sure about your friend. Drop him!) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've heard a lot of tips on saving money at the supermarket, like, "don't shop when you're hungry," "stick to a list," "don't take your husband along if he's a patsy for gourmet foods," etc., but here's a new one:

A friend says her secret is to shop with a cart only once a week, when she stocks up. In between, if she needs fill-in items, she walks right past the cart stall, and buys only what she can carry out in her two hands. Outside of spilling a few things, it's a great time and money saver, she reports. — NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR:

Another idea: If you live within walking or bike-riding distance of the market, leave your car at home when you only "need a few things at the store." — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if your write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD V. BRADLEY JR.
Married at St. Anselm's

Two Trade Vows At St. Anselm's

Pamela Mary Yoell of Larkspur was married early this month to Donald V. Bradley Jr. of San Anselmo in rites at St. Anselm's Catholic Church in San Anselmo.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laurence V. Yoell of Larkspur, and the sister of Melodie Behm of Larkspur, Larry Yoell Jr. of Santa Rosa and Richard Yoell of San Francisco.

Bradley's parents are Patricia Badia of Las Vegas and Donald Bradley of San Francisco.

Ricardo Munoz of San Francisco was best man, with Chris Bradley of Millbrae, Dan Milligan of San Diego, Don Fray of Redondo Beach and Rich Roybal of San Anselmo as ushers.

The couple took a wedding trip to Carmel and Disneyland. The young people are making their first home in San Anselmo.

The new Mrs. Bradley was graduated from Marin Catholic High School and attended College of Marin. She is employed in San Francisco at Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.

Young Bradley was graduated from St. Ignatius College Preparatory School, and attended Loyola and Marymount in Los Angeles and El Camino College in Torrance.

He is employed at Bradley's Refrigeration Company in San Francisco.

Gaston Bricard of San Mateo is his grandfather.

Winners Of Symphony Memberships Named

The Marin League of the San Francisco Symphony Foundation sponsors the program. A music student is selected from each of the county's 12 public and private high schools.

The winners named are Marc Israel, Marin Academy; Michael Pelfini, Marin Catholic High School; Ingrid Engelberg, Novato High School; Lou Ann Le Clerc, Redwood High School; Bridget Conrad, San Domenico School for Girls; Nancy G. Gibian, San Marin High School; Ken Sughita, San Rafael High School; Joe Allessi, Terra Linda High School; Jessie Draper, Katharine Branson School; and Martha Kostaubanic, Tomales High School.

Students are selected by the school music director, often after consultation with other staff members. The junior memberships offer such privileges as attending dress rehearsals, a spring concert and a discount on the purchase of classical records.

PARENT AND CHILD

Too Many Toys A Problem

The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Is one doll enough? One stuffed animal? One set of toy dishes? One model car? One toy road scraper? One deck of cards? One plastic model?

What about including a tricycle and a wagon and a sled and roller skates?

Toys have a way of coming apart early in their use. Yet these same disabled toys have a way of staying around. They are not repaired. They are not thrown away. And they are not put away, either.

An accumulation of toys often comes with a growing family. The first child may have a finite number of toys. But when baby sister or brother is born, the number of toys begins to escalate. The baby, of course, must have new toys as well as the leftover old toys. And the older child must have new toys, too.

WHAT'S WRONG with a growing young family of children having a multitude of toys?

Probably a great deal is wrong with this situation. Such a false sense of abundance teaches waste, not thrift. It soothes selfishness instead of fostering unselfishness.

Toys which break easily should be left in the store. Children should be given only quality toys in order to build their own sense of quality both in what they purchase and in what they build themselves.

Toys which are no longer useful should be fixed (if possible) or thrown away. Toys broken through carelessness or deliberate malice should not be replaced automatically or quickly. The baseball bat which warps in the rain and then cracks when used should be used for kindling or thrown out. And the child responsible for the loss should go without until the lesson is learned to take care of equipment.

Toys which are seldom, if ever, used but which children say they will not give up, might well be given to children who have very few toys. Greed is no quality to be nourished. Certainly every child can profit from learning to share.

WHY DO so many grocery stores stock cheap toys? Because children who shop with their parents can demand that these be bought for them by whining and crying and fussing.

What a sad sight this is. Mom and Dad both pushing half-full grocery carts, trying to get enough food for the family with dwindling purchasing power, yet seemingly helpless to say "no" to the children demanding candy, cookies and prepackaged toys.

Are these parents compulsive buyers? And if so, are they teaching their children to have the same problems? Is there no sense of thrift or economy in the home? Are these children to grow up ever dissatisfied with their supply of goods; and ever in slavery to material impulses?

The gift-giving season is coming. Now is the time to look over the toy situation, to take inventory. It is an opportunity to get rid of ruined toys and to determine whether or not each child might give away any excess toys.

Then, think carefully what new toys will give the most pleasure and be the most durable. It may even be a year for no toys at all. Instead, this may be the time for warm clothes or new books or trips to a local children's theater.

You can't have too few toys. Children without store-purchased toys make their own toys out of scraps of material. What may be an old piece of wood to an adult might be a toy ship to a child.

No, too few toys is not a possibility. But too many toys, that's a widespread problem.

Body Awareness Theme For Cancer Education

"Body Awareness" is the theme for Marin County Cancer Education Week, which began Monday and will continue through Saturday. Chairman is Jennie Cook.

"Each year the American Cancer Society focuses on a special aspect of cancer control," Mrs. Cook said. "For instance last year's effort was on uterine cancer and the Pap test. This year the 'Body Awareness' theme seeks to alert everyone to be aware of abnormal changes that may occur and may mean danger."

One of the major areas of Cancer Education Week's focus will be on breast cancer, urging all adult women to perform the monthly breast self examination for lumps and changes in the breast.

A leaflet, "Listen To Your Body," being distributed by the society points out that breast cancer is one of the easiest to find and diagnose, and 95 per cent of breast cancers are discovered by women themselves.

The earlier a cancerous condition is detected, the better the chance for cure, Mrs. Cook pointed out. She also emphasized the fact that women should remember that most lumps found in the breast are not cancerous, but they should be brought to the attention of a physician immediately.

"Body Awareness" also means listening for the other signs that could mean trouble, she said: change in bowel or bladder habits, a sore that does not heal, unusual bleeding or discharge, indigestion of difficulty in swallowing, obvious change in wart or mole and nagging cough or hoarseness.

Free materials on cancer are available from the society's office, 18 Mary Street in San Rafael.

Appalachia Boom Talk Discounted

Reports that the revitalized coal industry is bringing great prosperity throughout Appalachia were discounted by Sarah Lee Young of Mill Valley, who, with her husband, Raymond A. Young Jr., spent four months this year doing volunteer work at Henderson Settlement in Frakes, Ky. This was their second year of such service.

The settlement is near the borders of Tennessee, Virginia and Kentucky. The Youngs completed this year's stay at Frakes in mid-September. What they did find was the heavy impact of inflated prices on the people.

"Want in the midst of plenty" was the Biblical quotation heard frequently, Mrs. Young remarked. Most tend their own vegetable gardens and do canning and freezing to last through the winter.

Young, a retired insurance executive, and Mrs. Young became interested in the work of Henderson Settlement, a mission of the United Methodist Church a year ago.

They volunteered to act as foster parents for homeless children. Young worked with Don Stillwell, the settlement director, and also used his hobby of woodworking to teach some of the young men to make useful and attractive items from the native hardwood.

The coal activity near Frakes is limited to strip mining. The villages are relatively isolated. Frakes is about 50 miles from Hazard, Ky., reported to be the center of a coal mining boom.

The Youngs rented a house for $15 a month. (The cottage has inside plumbing, Mrs. Young explained. A house with outside plumbing would have cost only $10 per month).

The Mill Valley couple have also bought a well-fitted out trailer which they will donate to the use of hardworking foster parents to give them a chance to relax during their two days off each week. As it is now, Mrs. Young revealed, foster parents have no opportunity to get away and often end up working seven days a week.

The Mill Valley couple spent a month in Europe after leaving Kentucky. They are home now for the holidays, and will share Thanksgiving and Christmas festivities with their son, Raymond Young of Novato, their daughters, Kathie Polk of Santa Rosa and Janet Michaelson of Alameda, and four grandchildren.

In April they plan to take off for Kentucky again.

Pesky Sea Otters Back From The Brink Of Extintion

By LARRY WOOD
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

The playful California sea otter is making an amazing comeback from near-extinction. Less than 50 years ago, the otters — reduced by years of slaughter — numbered less than 40; now about 1,800 of the prankish little mammals live in the bobbing kelp beds in a refuge ara in the 170-mile Pacific Ocean coastal stretch between Santa Cruz and Avila.

Conservationists, of course, consider the gradual increase of the bewhiskered sea animals a success story because it took an all-out effort by the government to save them.

But sports and commercial fisherman are not so sure. Abalone — an important commercial fish product, is also one of the sleek brown mammal's favorite foods.

In fact, fisherman found the competition so tough that they decided that the formerly endangered otter is now a threat to the shellfish industry — a threat that must be controlled. When their protests met with no comment from the government, fishermen reacted sometimes by shooting or clubbing the animals.

California State Fish and Game biologists Paul W. Wild and Jack A. Ames have given five years of study to the fisherman-otter dilemma. This year they completed a report that suggests that the 1,800 otters now snacking their way through abalone and other shellfish are indeed an economic threat to commercial fish resources. Wild and Ames therefore recommend:

Protection and management of a healthy sea otter population restricted within the geographical limits from Moss Landing to Morro Bay.

PLAYFUL COMEBACK — The playful California sea otter is making an amazing comeback. Less than 50 years ago there were less than 40; now the otter population is about 1,800 and growing. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

"Continuing scientific study — in order to learn more about the otter and its habits — and a continually updated program of management."

Wild, who has become a top expert on sea otters, admits, "I love them, but I think we need program in order to keep them in control."

But keeping the otters in bounds is not a decision that the State of California can make alone. The decision of what to do next belongs to the Department of Interior in Washington, D.C., because the Marine Mammal Protection Act of 1972 gave the federal government control of the mammals.

The multiplication of the otter hasn't been all bad, however. Conservationists point out that, since the return of the otter, California's kelp beds are thriving. Kelp (also a commercial product of importance) benefits by the otter's presence because otters eat both abalones and sea urchins, two mollusks that eat kelp.

That's why some scientists, like Dr. John S. Pearse of the biology department of the University of California at Santa Cruz, view the otter population as beneficial to the balance of nature.

Dr. Pearse agrees with the conclusion of the Fish and Game study in part: "I think there is little question that commercial abalone fishing is impractical in areas with established sea otter populations; sea otters do reduce accessible abalone numbers to very low levels."

But, he comes to a different conclusion: "The presence of sea otters certainly does not endanger the total existence of abalones, probably quite the contrary.

"Moreover, I am not convinced that restricting sea otter populations will in any way assure the continuation of a viable commercial or sport abalone industry. Almost all of the data of the fish and game indicate a steady decline in to begin a sound management abalone stocks even in areas without sea otters."

Dr. Pearse feels that a more practical way to insure a continuing abalone industry would be to move in the direction of "farming" abalones rather than controlling their predators.

Obviously, something has to give. But otter supporters hope that "management" will not mean harsh measures against this appealing animal, which has only just struggled its way back from the brink of extinction.

Japanese Still Top U.S. Tourists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Japanese tourists are still pouring into Los Angeles at record levels despite a depressed economy in their homeland.

Hotel managers and travel agents say the rate of increase has slowed bu there has been no decline in the total number of visitors swarming to see Disneyland, Hollywood, Marineland and other attractions.

Lobbies of the major hotels always have a sprinkling to a crowd of Japanese with their ubiquitous cameras slung around their necks.

Spokesmen for hotels, stores, bus lines and tourists attractions say they are glad to see the visitors because the Japanese are lavish spenders.

There are three types of Japanese tourists:

The out-and-out sight-seers, usually middle-aged couples, and sometimes their children.

Excluding contiguous Mexico and Canada, Japan was No. 1 in the first eight months of this year in tourist arrivals in the United States.

The 1974 total was 519,145 against 425,066 in 1973. Of these, about 55 per cent go only to Guam and Hawaii. Accurate figures on the number who come to Los Angeles are unavailable.

"We have just received a market survey from Tokyo indicating a slight rise in tourism to this area," said Patrick Green, executive director of tour sales for Hilton Hotels Corp. "But the outlook could be shattered if Japan places more severe restrictions on travel. Even so, we are very optimistic."

The Japanese government restricts a citizen to taking $1,000 out of the country, exclusive of transportation costs.

"Until 1972 we didn't have many Japanese tourists coming here," said Nobuo Suzuki, operation manager of Pacifico Creative Service, Inc., a travel agency. "Now we are bringing in 10,000 a year, mostly just for sightseeing.

"The number of tourists has been increasing from year to year. But we do not expect as high a rate of increase because of the depressed economy in Japan."

Suzuki said summer is the peak season because Japanese students and families can come for vacations. He added that October-November is a busy season for honeymoon couples because that is the wedding season in Japan.

Don Dickens, general manager of the Sheraton West Hotel, one of two Japanese-owned hotels in the Los Angeles area, agreed that the Japanese tourist total was up but that the rate of increase had slowed.

"Japanese tourism was greatly affected by the oil crisis early this year," he said.

"All of our tours from January through March were cancelled because of the higher airline fares. But now it has come back to about what it was before.

"The primary market for Japanese tourists used to be Europe but it has shifted to the United States, mainly Guam and Hawaii. Now it is cheaper to come to the U.S. mainland than to go to Europe."

Among honeymoon couples returning to the Hyatt Regency Hotel after a jammed-packed sightseeing tour the other day were Mr. and Mrs. R. Shirotsuka of Tokyo and Mr. and Mrs. M. Togawa of Osaka. They had been married four days earlier.

After two days in San Francisco, it was their first day in Los Angeles. They had seen the Mexican shopping center on Olvera Street, Little Tokyo, the Civic Center, Hollywood Bowl, Grauman's Chinese Theater, the Sunset Strip, actors' homes in Beverly Hills and Farmers Market.

What did they like best?

"Farmers Market," said Togawa, 26, a service manager for a printing company. "We don't have anything like that in Japan."

What did they want to see the next day?

"Disneyland," chorused brides, Junko Shirotsuka, 24, and Mariko Togawa, 25.

Why did they choose Los Angeles for their honeymoon over the exotic spots of Asia?

"I was in the United States two years ago, and I wanted to show it to my wife," said Shirotsuka, 24, a market researcher for Coca-Cola Co. of Japan.

LIBERTY LADY — In preparation for the nation's coming Bicentennial celebration, the Statue of Liberty is being spruced up for the party, the first of many national landmarks that will get special treatment between now and Jan. 1, 1976. (Christian Science Monitor Photo)

State Employees Ask 12 Pct. Hike

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A major state employee organization yesterday proposed a 12 per cent pay raise or an extra $100 a month, whichever is greater, for every state government worker next year.

Included in the recommendation by the California State Employees Association was a cost of living "escalator" which would provide mid-year pay adjustments keyed to the Consumer Price Index.

John Matheny, president of the 110,000-member employee association, told the state Personnel Board that soaring inflation and the slumping national economy "more than justifies the recommended increases."

In the current state budget, the average state civil servant received a 5.3 per cent pay increase.

An association spokesman said no specific dollar figure for the group's recommended pay package was computed because the proposal is "negotiable."

The association's major proposal called for salary raises of at least 12 per cent for the fiscal year starting July 1, or a raise of $100 each month, whichever is greater.

The Personnel Board each year surveys private industries and other governmental jurisdictions to determine what they pay their employees for similar work and then makes a recommendation to the governor and legislature.

The GSEA also urged that a full-time state employee with permanent status be paid at least $683 a month and that state workers receive mid-year cost of living adjustments based on the Consumer Price Index.

In prepared remarks, Matheny warned that "unless the board accepts the challenge it faces, every state employee will undergo drastic cuts in her or his standard of living. Many of them will be made literal paupers by inadequate salaries."

Statue Of Liberty Getting Spruced Up

NEW YORK, N. Y. — Miss Liberty, that grand old lady of New York Harbor who still stirs the hearts of many a traveler, is being spruced up for a very special occasion — the 200th birthday party of the U.S.

Even Uncle Sam knows that a lady getting ready for a party is apt to take a while. Thus, with more than a year to go before the U.S. Bicentennial celebration gets under way, Miss Liberty's primping has started already — with the help of a $50,000 donation from the American Express Company.

And if the U.S. National Parks Service sees its wishes come true, the Statue of Liberty will be only the first of many historic landmarks that will get special treatment between now and the official bicentennial opening Jan. 1, 1976.

Parks Service officials have compiled a "wish list" of special projects which they have sent out to 250 large and small business firms in hopes of enlisting help for what already promises to be a mammoth celebration.

Even without funds from private donors, the parks service is spending $100 million in federal funds over three years for bicentennial projects.

Parks Service officials stress that the projects on their "wish list" are optional. If firms do not come forward with donations — and thus far, not many have, because of the economy — none of the country's national monuments are going to crumble.

Federal funds provide for maintaining the nation's parks and monuments, they point out, but the items on the "wish list" are those not likely to be funded in time for the bicentennial.

Dr. William Hendericksson, who supervises the U.S. parks and monuments in New York, says one of the biggest items on the list is Ellis Island, the abandoned site where millions of immigrants to the U.S. were processed until the 1920's.

Today, its empty buildings, within sight of the Statue of Liberty, are crumbling and forgotten. Dr. Henderickson concedes "as much as $100 million could be spent" in restoring Ellis Island.

Most items on the "wish list," though, are far less costly, and not all have to do with restoring historical landmarks. Parks Service officials would like to stage "living history" dramas, build trails for the handicapped and bicyclers in the parks, and landscape historic battlefields.

Getting the Statue of Liberty spruced up for the bicentennial has proved a monumental task. Replacing 600 pieces of cathedral glass in the torch meant workmen had to climb the winding staircase each day and dangle 300 feet above the harbor while the torch swayed dangerously in the wind.

Now work is set to start on steam-cleaning and repainting the internal parts of the shell.

House Is Raided As Suspected Hearst Hideout

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Nashville police raided a house suspected of housing fugitive heiress Patricia Hearst late last night, but a white woman who had lived there for a time was gone, officers said.

Detective Sgt. Sherman Nickens said the woman could have been Miss Hearst.

Heavily armed officers surrounded the house in a predominantly black area and ordered its occupants outside. Two black men and two black women emerged.

Nickens said two of the occupants picked out pictures of Miss Hearst as being the woman who had lived in the house for an undetermined length of time. The occupants had conflicting reports on when the white woman left. They said she had a baby with her and left in a car with Florida tags with a black man. One witness said she was in the house as late as last Saturday.

Recreation Programs Scheduled

Field trips, puppet shows and an adult bicycle tour are planned by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department this month.

The puppet shows for kindergarten through third graders are set for these times and locations on Saturday: Terra Linda recreation center, 9:30 a.m.; Sun Valley School, 11 a.m.; Davidson Middle School, 1 p.m., and Glenwood School, 2:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

The shows are by the Rainbow Puppet Theater, a spokesman said.

Also on Saturday, an adult bicycle tour will begin at 9:30 a.m. from Sterling Vineyards off Highway 29 north of Napa, through the Napa Valley Wine Tasters region.

A trip for fourth through sixth graders to the Oakland Coliseum to see a Golden State Warriors basketball game is set for next Tuesday, and a trip for seventh and eighth graders to the Santa Cruz Boardwalk Amusement Park is set for Nov. 30.

More information is available from recreation supervisor Jim Carr at city hall.

Belli Considers Censure Appeal

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Flamboyant attorney Melvin Belli says he may appeal a federal judge's dismissal of his $3 million suit against a professional association which censured him for appearing in a scotch whisky ad.

The state bar had recommended Belli be suspended for a year because of unethical advertising. The California Supreme Court reduced the punishment to 30 days.

U.S. District Judge Robert Schnacke, in dismissing Belli's suit, said the bar performed its duty as part of the judicial process.

The bar had contended that Belli's appearance in the ad was a violation of the profession's rules against soliciting employment by advertising.

Sausalito Students Improving

Second-grade and third-grade pupils in the Sausalito School District this year showed improvement in statewide reading tests, but still fell slightly below the state average, Supt. Donald W. Johnson reported yesterday.

Sausalito second graders scored an average of 66, compared to an average 66.6 by their peers throughout the state. Third graders scored 78.7, with the state average at 80.2.

School districts with a student composition similar to Sausalito's are expected to score between the 13th and 39th percentiles, according to the superintendent. On this test, given this spring, Sausalito hit the 45th percentile.

"We were within our expected percentile range last time," Johnson said. "Now we are above it. We have pulled up to a competitive place in the state."

By use of a formula, California scores were compared with the national average on reading tests. Sausalito second graders were considerably above the natinal average of 63.9, while third graders were one point below the 79.7 national average.

This year's test was called the California Assessment Program Reading Test. A similar test has been given annually since 1965.

Winter Art Workshop Set

The Marin annual winter art festival workshops for teachers, volunteers and aides will be from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday at Sinaloa Junior High School in Novato.

The event sponsored by the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office, the Novato Unified School District and Dominican College, San Rafael, will be on the theme, "The material and the essence."

About 200 persons are expected to attend, according to coordinator Lee Hilton, art specialist, Novato Unified School District.

Young Finally Wins In N.D.

BISMARCK, N.D. (AP) — Incumbent Republican Sen. Milton R. Young defeated former Democratic Gov. William L. Guy by 177 votes in the race for the U.S. Senate, the State Canvassing Board announced yesterday.

A recount is expected.

Although the report was not signed by the five canvass board members, Secretary of State Ben Meier said the vote could be considered official. He said the report would be signed after the board finished its count of the legislative races in North Dakota.

Final totals from the State Canvassing Board showed Young with 114,852 votes and Guy with 114,675.

NFO Delays Scheduled Cattle Kill

HANFORD (UPI) — A local spokesman for the National Farmers Organization said today a planned cattle kill to protest low beef and milk prices has been indefinitely postponed.

C. Richard O'Rourke, a Lemoore area rancher and one of the protest organizers, said the decision followed a Monday night meeting with NFO members from Kern, Kings, Tulare, San Luis Obisop and Stanislaus counties.

O'Rourke said the local members decided to follow a policy voiced recently by the national NFO.

National NFO President Oren Lee Staley last week called for a $2 billion authorization by Congress to permit excess U.S. livestock and milk products to be converted into food for starving people around the world.

Staley also noted recent cattle kills around the U.S. has generated bad publicity for ranchers because of world hunger problems.

O'Rourke said the local group felt they should back the national NFO on the issue to see if Congress would act.

Up to 400 beef and dairy calves were scheduled for slaughter at a Fresno packing house beginning Nov. 26. The local ranchers had planned to donate the meat to charity.

Bold Sugar Thieves Loot Oakland Bakery Supplier

By GEORGE MONEYHUN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

OAKLAND (AP) — More than 3,000 pounds of expensive sugar have been heisted in the past month from a bakery supply company by teams of commando-like raiders who streak out with 100-pound sacks and roar away in waiting cars.

"Sometimes three or four guys operate in a chain running in and out, loading their car," Joe Guido, sanitation supervisor for the Peavey Co., said Tuesday. "One night they got away with 2,300 pounds. I guess the sugar shortage is causing it."

The brazen thieves sometimes just walk in or hide between the sacks waiting for the workers to turn their backs, he added.

Guido said the culprits made off with more than $1,500 worth of sugar, and there's no end in sight.

Whenever the company unloads trucks full of sugar, young men begin hanging around, covetously eyeing the sacks, he said.

"The next thing you know, somebody's taking a sack," Guido said. "I was driving up and caught one guy. I was going to run him over with my car, but he dropped the sack and ran. Another guy was in my grasp, but he reached for what I thought was a gun so I let him go."

"Somebody wants sugar real bad," added Guido. "The momentum is building. I expect to come in some morning and find all 200,000 pounds gone."

Soloists Redeem Bach Concerti

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Symphony continued its "Bach to Bach" series last night with an emphasis on the Bach family's concerti for harpsichord or violin. The evening's sole redeeming grace was the performances of the various soloists.

Mill Valley harpsichordist John Robin Sutherland joined Margaret Fabrizio and the San Francisco Symphony under the baton of Nilaus Wyss to perform two Bach double concerti for harpsichord and orchestra at the Palace of Fine Arts.

The program's opening, "Sinfonia in E Major for Double Orchestra, Opus 18, No. 5" was given very cautious treatment.

An early critic wrote of this piece, "The development of the thematic material is limited in scope, while in harmony and rhythm little progress is noticeable. The melodic invention, however, is superb." Niklaus Wyss's conducting and the orchestra's rather tenuous control failed to make the most of that melodic invention, thus weakening already limited material.

However, Wyss did do well with the little lifts, the momentary jumps, in the melodic line that give the work its sense of play.

Once again the San Francisco string section was its warm and delicate self and the woodwinds delighted anew.

Wilhelm Friedeman Bach's "Double Concerto for Two Harpsichords and Orchestra in E Flat Major" is a darker, percussive piece. Emotionally it is rather flat, except for the lacy harpsichord segments. The orchestrated accompaniment lacked separation and was muddy and piecemeal in comparison to previous "Bach to Bach" performances. The first movement was muted and stifled. It was snuffed out, rather than brought to a close, at its end.

Miss Fabrizio and Sutherland were exceptions to the orchestra's treatment. Texturing the harpsichord segments marvelously, she gave the phrasing lift and surprise.

Sutherland was more delicate, nimble, adding accent to Fabrizio's basic line. Together they were a fine team. The cantabile movement was all theirs for the subtle flourishes and crispness of control.

The evening's saving grace, other than the playing of the two harpsichordists, came with violinists Stuart Canin and David Abel in Johann Sebastian Bach's "Double Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D Minor."

Canin's sheer, clean classicism contrasted elegantly with Abel's darker, more Romantic bent. Together they were intense, refined, stirring and gave the piece a pumping forcefulness.

Abel's articulation and intonation was rich and Canin's personal modesty reveals itself in his playing. He comes very close to the personable warmth of an Issac Stern or, to mix instruments, a Rubenstein.

The program closed with Carl Phillip Emanuel Bach's "Double Concerto for Harpsichord and Piano in E Flat Major". It was sadly inadequate, despite the efforts of Miss Fabrizio and Sutherland.

The marvelous, birdsong arpeggios were reduced to nursery tunes. That which is charming became cute instead under conductor Wyss's errant baton.

Sutherland tried valiantly to fight this trend. His playing had charm, understanding, brilliance. He set a standard the conductor couldn't match.

The larghetto was an improvement, at least we could approach it more seriously, but the whole was emotionally disjointed and tenuous. With nothing being brought to any fullness, the evening was a disappointing let-down in this otherwise exciting "Bach to Bach" series. The final concert of the series is on Nov. 21 at the Palace of Fine Arts at 8:30 p.m.

Mitchell Refused To Be Fall Guy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Attorney General John N. Mitchell refused under pressure from President Richard M. Nixon to take full blame for Watergate in the spring of 1973 and instead "lobbed mud balls at the White House," according to a tape played in court today.

Mitchell's refusal to shoulder all responsibility for Watergate was the apparent turning point in a long day of meetings between Nixon and his aides on April 14, 1973, as the Watergate cover-up began to unravel.

The events of that day unfolded slowly in U.S. District Court as the prosecution played tape recordings of those meetings for the jury in the Watergate cover-up trial of Mitchell, John D. Ehrlichman, H.R. Haldeman and two other former Nixon associates.

The tapes disclosed that Nixon first directed Ehrlichman to ask Mitchell to take the blame for Watergate. But Ehrlichman reported back that Mitchell, Nixon's old friend and 1972 reelection campaign manager, refused to do so.

Erhlichman returned later in the day to report that Jeb Stuart Magruder, Mitchell's campaign deputy, had just told the truth about Watergate to federal prosecutors.

Finally, Nixon realized the truth of White House involvement was going to come out and braced himself for what he described as a "terrible, terrible scandal" — a scandal which eventually forced him from office.

"Now," he told Ehrlichman on the tape, "...the thing to do now is to have the son of a bitch done — indict Mitchell and all the rest and there'll be a horrible two weeks — worse than Teapot Dome and so forth."

But he quickly reconsidered his assessment of the scandal saying: "And it isn't — doesn't have anything to do with Teapot. It isn't as bad as ... I mean good God, there's got to be no venality involved in the damn thing, no thievery or anything of that sort of thing. Nobody got any favors, and, uh — you know what I mean?"

When Ehrlichman entered the Oval Office earlier in the day after meeting with Mitchell, Nixon quickly asked him if he was "all finished" with his assigned task.

"Yes, sir," Ehrlichman replied. "All finished. He (Mitchell) is an innocent man in his heart and in his mind, and he does not intend to move off that position."

Ehrlichman secretly taped his meeting with Mitchell that April 14. Although the prosecution chose not to enter that tape into evidence, it was played during congressional investigations and indicated that Mitchell insisted he had been pressured into the Watergate intelligence-gathering operation by the White House.

In an April 14, 1973, tape played in court yesterday Nixon said it was a "goddamn painful" thing for him to ask Mitchell to take the blame for Watergate. But he indicated it was necessary to take the heat off the White House.

Burst Sacks Stall Traffic

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sacks of powdered fungicide spilled on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge yesterday, causing a big traffic snarl during the evening commute crunch.

The California Highway Patrol said westbound traffic was halted a half hour and motorists were warned to close their windows because the powder — although non-toxic — could cause eye irritation.

Several 100-pound sacks fell from the back of a truck and burst. There were no injuries.

Kleindienst Censured

PHOENIX (UPI) — Former U.S. attorney general Richard Kleindienst has been censured by the Arizona Supreme Court.

Kleindienst was fined $100 and placed on 30 days unsupervised probation last summer after he pleaded guilty to withholding information from a Senate investigating committee.

The high court acted on the recommendation of the Board of Governors of the state Bar of Arizona, which favored censure by an 8-6 margin. Bar President Stanley G. Feldman of Tucson said none of the board members favored disbarment of Kleindienst.

2 Men, Woman Jailed After Drug Probe

State narcotics agents seized an ounce of cocaine and several especially potent marijuana cigarettes yesterday as they arrested two men and a woman on drug counts.

The arrests capped a six-week investigation during which undercover agents made three cocaine purchases, said agent G. H. Van Raam of the California Bureau of Narcotic Enforcement.

Agents last night went to the home of Virginia Helen Simmons, 27, at 85 Taylor Drive, Fairfax, and purchased an ounce of cocaine from her and Mark David Sabre, also known as Mark Richard Saven, 22, of no known address.

They then arrested the pair, booking Miss Simmons into Marin County Jail on suspicion of sale of cocaine and Sabre on suspicion of the same count and also possessing eight to 10 "Thai Sticks," marijuana cigarettes imported from the Far East.

Shortly thereafter, Van Raam said, agents went to the apartment of Richard Gregory Hennig, 22, of 330 Canal Street, Apt. 3B, San Rafael, and arrested him on suspicion of selling cocaine. No drugs were found there, Van Raam said.

Congress Boosts Antitrust Fines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an outgrowth of the Watergate scandals, Congress has approved a bill to increase antitrust fines to $1 million and publicize "lobbying contacts" between antitrust defendants and government officials.

The Senate, which passed its version 92-0, is expected to accept minor changes made by the House, which passed the measure by voice vote yesterday. President Ford is expected to sign the bill.

Petaluma's Library Plans Gain

Permits and plans for Petaluma's $1 million new library were approved last night by the city planning commission provided a solution is found to what Commissioner John Balshaw has called a major parking problem.

Some 70 parking spaces near the library site at the corner of East Washington and Payran Streets have been designated as part of the facility's ultimate parking capacity. Presently the slots are used extensively by commuters, who leave their cars all day while they travel south in carpools or buses.

The planning commission has informed the council it believes the spaces are necessary for library patrons, but merely evicting commuter vehicles, the commission fears, will result in their blocking roads in the area by parking on streets.

The commission is suggesting to the city council that it find another off-street parking area for the commuters.

Prices Raised

Marin Rent Control Pact Is Ruled Valid In Ignacio

Marin's first rent control agreement — in which a developer promised to reserve some units for persons with moderate incomes — was declared valid yesterday.

But at the same time, Superior Court Judge Joseph G. Wilson said the county cannot withhold occupancy permits for the 89-unit apartment project Edward H. Burge is building on Entrada Drive in Ignacio.

In an eight-page decision, Judge Wilson ruled the 1972 agreement between Burge and the county is proper.

Since the apartments are in a planned development area, the county legally could have given Burge fewer than 89 units. But officials gave him a "density bonus" of 29 units on his promise to keep rents down on 14 of them.

"If the county offered petitioner (Burge) a density bonus which was in truth a bonus, that is, more than he might be entitled to if ordinary and accepted planning principles were reasonably applied, in exchange for his commitment to provide some housing at less than market rates," the agreement would be valid, Wilson said.

He ruled this was true in the Burge case.

However, Wilson said, the county had no right to withhold occupancy permits for those units which have been finished, and ordered them to be issued.

He urged Burge and the county to negotiate to settle their differences over rents to be applied to the 14 units. Otherwise, he said, the county will have to file another lawsuit if it wants to enforce the agreement.

Redevelopment Sessions Called

San Rafael's citizens advisory committee on redevelopment, meeting for the second time to consider alternative redevelopment proposals drafted by city consultants, last night called three more meetings.

The committee said it will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday in the city hall conference room to continue deliberations on the consultants' redevelopment sketch plans.

School Unit Windfall Put To Work

The Novato Unified School District board which has had slim pickings for the past three years, last night did not waste any time in spending $199,500 for items which it has cut out of past budgets. (Another Novato Schools story, page 1.)

Supt. James G. Bunker said that the district is receiving an additional $360,000 in income because of added average daily attendance from Hamilton Air Force Reserve Base housing.

Main items in the budget additions were $61,600 for replacement of instructional materials such as typewriters and shop items, $30,000 in instructional supplies, $2,600 in textbooks and $9,200 in supplemental books.

Other items in capital outlay included a five-bladed lawnmower, a sweeper to clean up the broken glass and debris from the black top areas of the school, and $30,000 to start improvements at all of the school sites. This will be a continuing program to add play equipment in the elementary schools, physical education facilities at the three junior high schools and two high schools.

The only money spent for salaries was for clerical help in the elementary, junior and senior high schools, and a mechanic to help maintain the district's fleet of buses.

The vote on the budget change was 4-1 with Trustee Betty Machado against and trustees John D. Kassenbrock and Ronald D. Schenck absent.

The board also voted to allow the Little League to construct a ballfield on the elementary school site adjacent to Novato High School. The vote on that was 4-1 with Trustee William T. Eckhoff against.

The Incas had no knowledge of the wheel, no draft animals and no beasts of burden other than the llama — strong enough to transport 80-pound loads over Andean trails but too frail to carry a man, National Geographic says.

WHAT'S IN STORE

PLANNING AHEAD

"The holiday season fast approacheth." Yes, and without advance planning it will be upon us before we're ready! To me, nothing is more disappointing than a hurried and harried holiday with no time to enjoy the pleasures of this special time of the year.

If you plan the traditional fruitcake-and-cookie baking, now is the time to get busy. I'd like to share our family's favorite Swiss cookie recipe, which needs to be baked ahead to "mellow" to its best.

LECKERLIS

⅓ cup butter
1 cup sugar
½ cup orange marmalade
grated rind of one orange
5 cups flour
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
½ tsp. cloves
1 tsp. nutmeg
2 tsp. baking powder
1 cup chopped slivered blanched almonds

In a 2-quart sauce pan, melt honey and butter together over low heat, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Stir in sugar, marmalade, and orange rind. Sift remaining dry ingredients together and add to warm mixture. Add nuts. Roll ¼" thick on floured board. Cut into 2" squares. Bake on greased waxed paper on cookie sheet in slow oven (325°) for 15 to 20 minutes. Remove from pan. While still warm, brush with confectioner's frosting (powdered sugar mixed with milk). Cool. Store in airtight container until holidays. Makes about 5½ dozen cookies.

"I don't care what Mama don't allow, I'm gonna read my paper anyhow!"

Tony's Five-Year Pasta Run

BOSTON (UPI) — "Anthony Martignetti lives in Boston. On Prince Street. In the Italian North End. The home, for more than 50 years, of the Prince Spaghetti Company."

So begins the television commercial that shows a little boy running home to dinner, scampering through the crowded streets of Boston's North End.

"Most days Anthony takes his time going home," the script goes. "But not today. Today is Wednesday. And, as every family in the North End of Boston will tell you, Wednesday is Prince Spaghetti day."

It's been five years since young Anthony Martignetti made that commercial. He's now 17 and is a sophomore at St. Mary's High School in nearby Cambridge.

Anthony was literally discovered for the commercial and it vaulted him into local stardom, he recalled yesterday.

"I was standing around with some of my friends when some guys from New York when some guys from New York came over and asked me if I'd like to be on television. I said yes, and a week later they came back and shot the commercial."

He said people at his school made a "big deal" about his role and he occasionally was recognized on the street.

He said he is surprised that the commercial is still being aired after five years, but that means he still gets residual payments.

"I still don't see them," he said. "It all goes into a trust fund."

Anthony said he would like to do television work again should the opportunity arise, but he's presently planning to attend college where he hopes to go out for varsity hockey. He's the team goalie at St. Mary's.

Anthony's family came from Avellino when he was a young boy and Italian is still the native tongue at the dinner table.

However, he says, Wednesday isn't really his Mom's spaghetti day — "She makes it whenever she feels like it."

Expert Sees No Water Problem

NEW YORK (UPI) — A water-supply expert advised Americans today not to be alarmed by reports that drinking water in some places may contain substances which might cause cancer.

Robert B. Hilbert of Salt Lake City, president of the American Water Works Association (AWWA), commented at a news conference in the New York Hilton about "disturbing headlines" about water quality which have appeared recently — notably as a result of a study of the New Orleans water supply.

"The sun is a known cause of skin cancer, but that doesn't make us panic or order our beaches shut down," Hilbert said. "Similarly, we should be concerned, but not alarmed, that extremely minute quantities of so-called potential carcinogens (cancer-causing agents) have been found in some water supplies."

He said chlorine, asbestos and other pollutants should be removed from water if it is practical to do so, but emphasized that these substances are not known to be harmful. He said research is needed to clarify the situation.

"Shall we spend vast sums to remove something from water that does us no harm?" he asked. "Shall we remove elements first, and then do research after?

"We of the American Water Works Association have been urging the federal government to apply funds for water-supply research for years. This is not a crisis situation, but we need action now so that it will not become one."

"Action Now" is the name of an AWWA public information program urging the government to devote more funds to providing better water for people — an area which Hilbert said has largely been ignored while the nation spends billions to provide better water for fish.

Hilbert is the secretary-treasurer and general manager of the Salt Lake County Water Conservancy District. At 45, he is the youngest president the AWWA has ever had.

'Feeling Good' To Debut But It May Be A Bummer

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — "Feeling Good," a costly new adult health care series, arrives on public TV tonight, preceded by an aggressive publicity campaign rivaling the mightiest network effort.

Sorry to say, the hard sell by the series' creator, Children's Television Workshop, cannot disguise the fact that the opening round in this 26-week program is a bloated bummer.

It is so dull, its health advice so sugar-coated in "cute" characters and situations, viewers may either fall asleep or quickly decide the only remedy for a case of terminal coyness is another channel.

The basic idea of the series is admirable —to increase public awareness, particularly among parents, of steps they can take to prevent illness and keep themselves and their loved ones in good health.

But the execution of the idea, at least in tonight's show dealing with prenatal care, nutrition and mental health, is poorly done.

It opens at "Mac's Place," a variety store where resident members of "Feeling Good" gather, largely to set up situations from which the show can slide into scenes concerning the subject at hand.

Sometimes the characters are involved in these point-making scenes, such as when Mac, the proprietor, strains his back at work. After gentle nagging by his friends, he calls his doctor for a checkup.

Turns out the doctor died three years ago and Mac hasn't had a physical in eight years. It almost seems that long before the point is made that everyone should have an annual medical checkup.

Comedian Bill Cosby, the series' star, appears in a prenatal skit, cast as an unborn baby in a womb. He calls on Mom for more calcium and iron to remind all this is what expectant mothers need in their diet. He also should have called for better dialogue.

About the only lively skit in the show is a satirical take-off on chain hamburger shop commericals. A real-life scene in which a once-emotionally troubled auto mechanic discusses his psychiatric help also is effective. At least it's direct and to the point.

But the only real value I can see in this show lies in its brief announcements as to where viewers can write or call for advice on any of the topics covered in the hour-long program.

Pictured here is Steve Edmunds, Sausalito Cellars' Wine Manager, holding a 1972 Chardonnay from Chateau Montelena, an historic property in Calistoga, once a part of the famous Tubbs Estate, at the foot of Mt. St. Helena. The Montelena Chardonnay is a rich dry white in the tradition of the great French white Burgundy, full-bodied, exceptionally well balanced with a fine lingering aftertaste. This wine was voted best among 12 California 1972 Chardonnays, blind-tasted by the Vintner's Club in San Francisco. 6.00/fifth.

CLOS DU VAL WINE COMPANY: Napa, California. These wines were brought to their current power and elegance by Bernard Portet, a fine young winemaker who happens to be the son of the winemaker at Chateau Lafite Rothschild.

1972 ZINFANDEL: A rich, complex wine, very big, with the typical "briary" character of Zinfandel. Mouthfilling and fine, a treasure for a good cellar. 4.97 fifth/53.68 cs.

1972 CABERNET SAUVIGNON: Again, a fairly big wine, with a very lovely, rather soft Cabernet character, and much elegance. 5.98 fifth/64.58 cs.

STAG'S LEAP WINE CELLARS: The Winiarski's established their new winery in 1972 along the Silverado Trail, at the foot of the Stag's Leap Ridge, the spectacular range of rocky hills and escarpments along the southeastern edge of the Napa Valley. The Winiarski's dedication to fine wines is most evident in the exciting encounter with his first two releases:

1973 JOHANNISBERG RIESLING [Birkmyer Vineyard] Fresh, true riesling nose, big straightforward flavors, yet very elegant style, wonderful balance. 5.00 fifth/54.00 cs.

1972 CABERNET SAUVIGNON A classic, big Napa Cabernet nose leading into powerful mouthfilling flavors. Great complexity, incredible lingering finish. We've seen a few "great" California Cabernets in the past couple of years - this is among the greatest. 5.50 fifth/59.40 cs.

Also, from California: We've just received the new Freemark Abbey releases of 1970 Pinot Noir 5.50 fifth/59.40 cs. and 1972 Pinot Chardonnay 6.50 fifth/70.20 cs.

It is Freemark Abbey's opinion (and ours) that these are the very finest vintages of these two varietals Freemark has made to date.

Cork Screws reg. 1.98 Special 1.19

We've always tried to bring good German wines at good prices to our customer's attention, but we've never "featured" them till now. We have a few very lovely 1973 German wines we feel are ideal as apertif or first course wines for holiday feasts.

All 1973's are Qualitatswein

1973 Wiltinger Scharzberg Riesling	2.45 fifth/26.46 cs.
1973 Ayler Kupp Riesling	2.35 fifth/25.38 cs.
1973 Bernkasteler Kurfurstlay Riesling	2.39 fifth/25.81 cs.

And, in extremely limited supply, a great 1971 German wine to cellar while you drink the '73's

1971 Hattenheimer Schutzenhaus Riesling, Beerenauslese 17.95

Another ideal wine for a turkey dinner (or goose, or even ham for that matter) is a spicy Alsatian Gerwurztraminer. We'd like to recommend:

1973 Gewurztraminer, Hugel	4.35 fifth
1973 Gewurztraminer, Lorentz	3.59 fifth

If your taste runs to Burgundies, please consider:

1973 Macon [Pinot Chardonnay] Cave Coop de Prisse	3.75

Reagan To Hit 'Sawdust Trail'

LONG BEACH (UPI) — Outgoing California Gov. Ronald Reagan, declining to comment on his political plans, said yesterday he is preparing to hit the "sawdust trail" on behalf of the Republican Party and private enterprise.

Reagan, who leaves the governorship in January after eight years in office, said he would first carry his message to Republicans and then to people of all political faiths.

"I seek a return to less government and more free enterprise," Reagan told a meeting of the Associated Press Managing Editors. "I believe in the magic of the marketplace."

He said his first job would be to educate his own party which he said he believed has been misrepresented and "has failed in communicating."

"We're called the party of the rich, but we've never been able to match the spending of the Democrats," said the former actor.

Reagan said he would take his message to the public at large in personal appearances and through writing.

"I believe that faith in ourselves and faith in our institutions has never been lower," he said.

"We've seen a steady unrelenting expansion of government. American business and industry is in the deepest trouble in its history."

Reagan said the traditional concepts of private property, freedom and profits have become dirty words but must go hand-in-hand if America is to become economically healthy again.

Reagan was asked during a question period about the possibility of taking a Sherman-like statement against running for the presidency. This was a reference to Civil War Gen. William Sherman who said he would not accept if nominated or elected president.

"I remember Eisenhower once said the Sherman statement was a damn fool statement and he shouldn't have made it."

Ducking questions about his political plans, Reagan responded to one asking what he thought of President Ford's announcement that he would run for President in 1976.

"So what else is new," said Reagan. "It was no surprise."

Reagan said he felt Ford had done a good job as President so far but has been hampered with having to spend most of his time setting up his administration rather than solving problems.

RELIC OF 1890

Time Capsule's Perfect Day

NEW BEDFORD, Mass. (UPI) — It was a perfect day observed in a fitting manner, noted the secretary of the New Bedford YMCA on Oct. 6, 1890.

The comments from Charles S. Kelley were contained in a time capsule placed in the cornerstone of a new YMCA building dedicated on that date and found during the recent demolition of the building.

The square copper box about the size of an automobile battery was opened in the office of Mayor John Markey yesterday. There was no message for future generations, just the comment from Kelley that "fair skies and cool breezes made it a perfect day that was observed in a fitting manner."

However, the box contained a number of documents and mementoes, including a picture of the White House autographed by President Benjamin Harrison.

It also contained a number of newspapers, including the New York Times, the Boston Herald, and the Morning Mercury and Evening Standard papers in New Bedford, according to Joseph Finnerty, administrative assistant to Markey.

"There was an account from Capt. Gilbert B. Borden at the Point Barrow House of Refuge in Alaska, giving what was described as 'an interesting account of the habits of the Esquimaux, and additional facts concerning life in the icy north.'

"A number of New Bedford whaling ships went off on two and three-year voyages to the Artic," said Finnerty.

Finnerty said the capsule also contained a note from Gov. John Q. A. Brackett, an 1890 silver dollar, a program for the cornerstone laying of the day, a number of annual reports of YMCAs of Massachusets and Rhode Island and items about the city of New Bedford and what was taking place on that date.

The contents have been given to directors of the YMCA, and will be placed on display in recently constructed facilities.

State Asks Overruling On Bonding

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The California attorney general yesterday asked the U.S. Supreme Court to overrule an order that the state must post $3.5 million in bonds before battling construction of two high-rise casinos at Lake Tahoe.

The state asked the nation's highest court to overturn an order last week by the Ninth U.S. Court of Appeals requiring California to put up the money before it starts its court fight to halt the casinos. The state charges the casinos would spoil the lake's environment.

The money would cover any delay-losses by contractors Ted Jennings and Oliver Kahle should the state lose its fight. They received a go-ahead for the casinos from the two-state Tahoe Regional Planning Agency. California is contesting the split vote of the agency that approved construction.

California asked the high court, as an alternative, to issue its own temporary ban on construction until issues on the method of approval were settled.

The attorney general argued the state had "sovereign immunity" and did not have to post the bond when disputing a split vote on an environmental issue. The high-court suit also contended a bond would cost the state thousands of dollars in interest payments and that ordering states to post bonds in such cases would have a "chilling effect" on all state suits to protect the environment.

Guam Elects Sen. Bordallo

AGANA, Guam (UPI) — Former Sen. Ricardo Bordallo, a Democrat, defeated Guam's first elected governor, Republican Carlos Garcia Camacho, by 536 votes yesterday to win the gubernatorial spot.

Complete and official returns show Bordallo polled 11,391 votes to Camacho's 10,855 in the runoff election. Officials said the 12,246 votes cast represented 95 per cent of the island's total registered voters.

Camacho, who was appointed governor in 1969, defeated Bordallo in the U.S. possession's first election in 1970.

Electric Rate Structure Offered

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A California consumer group today presented the state Public Utilities Commission with a new electric rate structure for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. which would do away with the present practice of lowering charges as more electricity is used.

Mrs. Sylvia Siegel, executive director of the group called "Toward Utility Rate Normalization" (TURN), said the proposal was the result of a three-month analysis by consulting economist Eugene Coyle.

Mrs. Siegel told a news conference that the proposal was the first in the nation to propose a "lifeline" component for necessary electricity based on costs to the utility. She said the plan for price increases as more electricity is used would "curb the wasteful use of energy."

Coyle said the plan would allow PG&E to receive the same amount of revenue, including increases it has pending before the PUC.

However, he said, electric prices would go down for the average householder while industry makes up most of the difference.

"PG&E is overcharging residential customers by $52.8 million per year," he said, "and there is no doubt in my mind that it is selling its electricity to large customers below cost."

The proposal was presented to a PUC examiner now holding hearings on the utility's $233 million general rate increase application.

The "lifeline" aspect of the plan would charge only 2 cents a kilowatt hour for the first 400 hours, after which the rate would go to 2.9 cents.

Currently, PG&E charges almost 5 cents a kilowatt hour for the first 50 hours, 3. cents for the next 50, 2.7 cents for the next 100, with the charge dropping to 2.2 cents per kilowatt hour over 1,000.

$100 Million In Bonds Sold

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state treasurer's office yesterday sold $100 million in two separate bond issues to finance California veterans home and farm loans and community college construction.

Bank of America was the lowest of three bidders on the issues of $50 million each.

The Cal-Vet bonds were part of $350 million authorized by the voters last June to provide veterans with low-interest loans. The community college bonds were part of $160 million approved by voters in 1972 to finance a wide range of college construction programs throughout the state.
